McDonough,Karen Egolf,2015-06-18 For a full list of entries and contributors a generous selection of sample entries and more visit the The Advertising Age Encyclopedia of Advertising website Featuring nearly 600 extensively illustrated entries The Advertising Age Encyclopedia of Advertising provides detailed historic surveys of the world s leading agencies and major advertisers as well as brand and market histories it also profiles the influential men and women in advertising overviews advertising in the major countries of the world covers important issues affecting the field and discusses the key aspects of methodology practice strategy and theory Also includes a color insert The Consumer Response to Gasoline Price Changes

Kenneth Thomas Gillingham, 2011 When gasoline prices rise people notice the news is filled with reports of pinched household budgets and politicians feeling pressure to do something to ameliorate the burden Yet raising the gasoline tax to internalize externalities is widely considered by economists to be among the most economic efficiency improving policies we could implement in the transportation sector This dissertation brings new evidence to bear on quantifying the responsiveness to changing gasoline prices both on the intensive margin i e how much to drive and the extensive margin i e what vehicles to buy I assemble a unique and extremely rich vehicle level dataset that includes all new vehicle registrations in California 2001 to 2009 and all of the mandatory smog check program odometer readings for 2002 to 2009 The full dataset exceeds 49 million observations Using this dataset I quantify the responsiveness to gasoline price changes on both margins as well as the heterogeneity in the responsiveness I develop a novel structural model of vehicle choice and subsequent utilization where consumer decisions are modeled in a dynamic setting that explicitly accounts for selection on unobserved driving preference at both the time of purchase and the time of driving This utility consistent model allows for the analysis of the welfare implications to consumers and government of a variety of different policies including gasoline taxes and feebates I find that consumers are responsive to changing gasoline prices in both vehicle choice and driving decisions with more responsiveness than in many recent studies in the literature I estimate a medium run i e roughly two year elasticity of fuel economy with respect to the price of gasoline for new vehicles around 0.1 for California a response that varies by whether the vehicle manufacturer faces a tightly binding fuel economy standard I estimate a medium run elasticity of driving with respect to the price of gasoline around 0.15 for new personal vehicles in the first six years Older vehicles are driven much less but tend to be more responsive with an elasticity of roughly 0.3 I find that the vehicle level responsiveness in driving to gasoline price changes varies by vehicle class income geographic and demographic groups I also find that not including controls for economic conditions and not accounting for selection into different types of new vehicles based on unobserved driving preference tend to bias the elasticity of driving away from zero implying a greater responsiveness than the true responsiveness This is an important methodological point for much of the literature estimating similar elasticities ignores these two issues These results have significant policy implications for policies to reduce gasoline consumption and greenhouse gas emissions from transportation The relatively inelastic estimated responsiveness on both margins suggests that a gasoline tax policy may not lead to dramatic reductions in carbon dioxide emissions but is a relatively non distortionary policy instrument to raise revenue When the externalities of driving are considered an increased gasoline tax may not only be relatively non distortionary but even economic efficiency improving However I find that the welfare changes from an increased gasoline tax vary significantly across counties in California an important consideration for the political feasibility of the policy Finally I find suggestive evidence that the rebound effect of a policy that works only on the extensive margin such as a feebate or CAFE standards may be closer to zero than the elasticity of driving with respect to the price of gasoline This suggestive finding is particularly important for the analysis of the welfare effects of any policy that focuses entirely on the extensive margin

Algorithm Concept for Crash Detection in Passenger Cars André Leschke, 2020-03-18 State of the art airbag algorithms make a decision to fire restraint systems in a crash by evaluating the deceleration of the entire vehicle during the single events of the accident In order to meet the ever increasing requirements of consumer test organizations and global legislators a detailed knowledge of the nature and direction of the crash would be of great benefit The algorithms used in current vehicles can only do this to a limited extent Andr Leschke presents a completely different algorithm concept to solve these problems In addition to vehicle deceleration the chronological sequence of an accident and the associated local and temporal destruction of the vehicle are possible indicators for an accident's severity About the Author Dr Andr Leschke has earned his doctoral degree from Tor Vergata University of Rome Italy Currently he is working as head of a team of vehicle safety developers in the German automotive industry Buying a Safer Car for Child Passengers 2000, 1999 Killed by a Traffic Engineer Wes Marshall, 2024-06-04 In the US we are nearing four million road deaths since we began counting them in 1899 The numbers are getting worse in recent years yet we continue to accept these deaths as part of doing business There has been no examination of why we engineer roads that are literally killing us Fixing the carnage on our roadways requires a change in mindset and a dramatic transformation of transportation This goes for traffic engineers in particular because they are still the ones in charge of our streets In Killed by a Traffic Engineer civil engineering professor Wes Marshall shines a spotlight on how little science there is behind the way that our streets are engineered which leaves safety as an afterthought While traffic engineers are not trying to cause deliberate harm to anyone he explains they are guilty of creating a transportation system whose designs remain largely based on plausible but unproven conjecture Thoroughly researched and compellingly written Killed by a Traffic Engineer shows how traffic engineering research is outdated and unexamined at its best and often steered by an industry and culture considering only how to get from point A to B the fastest way possible to the detriment of safety quality of life equality and planetary health Marshall examines our need for speed and how traffic engineers disconnected it from safety the focus on capacity and how it influences design blaming human error relying on faulty data how liability drives reporting measuring road safety outcomes and the education and reeducation of traffic engineers Killed by a Traffic Engineer is ultimately hopeful about what is possible once we shift our thinking and demand streets engineered for the safety of people both outside and inside of cars It will make you look at your city and streets and traffic engineers in a new light and inspire you to take action
