Abstract: Staphylococcus aureus is a leading cause of nosocomial infection. The purpose of this study was to determine the prevalence of S. aureus in the hospital environment and to identify risk factors for colonization. A total of 100 samples were collected from the hospital environment, including patient rooms, nursing stations, and operating rooms. The results showed that 60% of the samples were positive for S. aureus. The highest prevalence was found in the operating rooms (80%), followed by the nursing stations (50%) and patient rooms (30%). The study also identified several risk factors for colonization, including contact with medical equipment, proximity to the operating room, and colonization of healthcare workers.
