Prescribing the Dharma Ira Helderman, 2019-02-08 Interest in the psychotherapeutic capacity of Buddhist teachings and practices is widely evident in the popular imagination News media routinely report on the neuropsychological study of Buddhist meditation and applications of mindfulness practices in settings including corporate offices the U S military and university health centers However as Ira Helderman shows curious investigators have studied the psychological dimensions of Buddhist doctrine for well over a century stretching back to William James and Carl Jung These activities have shaped both the mental health field and Buddhist practice throughout the United States This is the first comprehensive study of the surprisingly diverse ways that psychotherapists have related to Buddhist traditions Through extensive fieldwork and in depth interviews with clinicians many of whom have been formative to the therapeutic use of Buddhist practices Helderman gives voice to the psychotherapists themselves He focuses on how they understand key categories such as religion and science Some are invested in maintaining a hard border between religion and psychotherapy as a biomedical discipline Others speak of a religious secular binary that they mean to disrupt Helderman finds that psychotherapists' approaches to Buddhist traditions are molded by how they define what is and is not religious demonstrating how central these concepts are in contemporary American culture Agitation with a Smile Stephen Bird, Adam Silver, Joshua C. Yesnowitz, 2015-11-17

Teaching Mindfulness Donald McCown, Diane K. Reibel, Marc S. Micozzi, 2010-03-10

The applications and use of mindfulness-based interventions in medicine, mental health care, and education have been expanding as rapidly as the empirical evidence base that is validating and recommending them. This growth has created a powerful demand for professionals who can effectively deliver these interventions and for the training of new professionals who can enter the field. Ironically, while the scientific literature on mindfulness has surged, little attention has been paid to the critical who and how of mindfulness pedagogy. Teaching Mindfulness is the first in-depth treatment of the person and skills of the mindfulness teacher. It is intended as a practical guide to the landscape of teaching to help those with a new or growing interest in mindfulness-based interventions to develop both the personal authenticity and the practical know-how that can make teaching mindfulness a highly rewarding and effective way of working with others. The detail of theory and praxis it contains can also help seasoned mindfulness practitioners and teachers to articulate and understand more clearly their own pedagogical approaches. Engagingly written and enriched with vignettes from actual classes and individual sessions, this unique volume places the current mindfulness-based interventions in their cultural and historical context to help clarify language use and the integration of Eastern and Western spiritual and secular traditions. Offers a highly relational understanding of mindfulness practice that supports moment-by-moment work with groups and individuals. Provides guidance and materials for a highly experiential exploration of the reader's personal practice, embodiment, and application of mindfulness. Describes in detail the four essential skill sets of the mindfulness teacher. Proposes a comprehensive systematic model of the intentions of teaching mindfulness as they are revealed in the mindfulness based interventions Includes sample scripts for a wide range of mindfulness practices and an extensive resource section for continued personal and career development Essential for today s practitioners and teachers of mindfulness based interventions Teaching Mindfulness A Practical Guide for Clinicians and Educators brings this increasingly important discipline into clearer focus opening dialogue for physicians clinical and health psychologists clinical social workers marriage and family therapists professional counselors nurses occupational therapists physical therapists pastoral counselors spiritual directors life coaches organizational development professionals and teachers and professionals in higher education in short everyone with an interest in helping others find their way into t he benefits of the present moment Dred Scott's Revenge Andrew P.
