

QUESTION

1. A material with a yield strength of 100 MPa is subjected to a tensile stress of 150 MPa. What is the expected behavior of the material?

ANSWER

1. The material will undergo plastic deformation. Since the applied stress (150 MPa) is greater than the yield strength (100 MPa), the material will have exceeded its elastic limit and will not return to its original shape after the stress is removed.
2. The material will undergo plastic deformation. The yield strength represents the maximum stress that a material can withstand without permanent deformation. Since the applied stress (150 MPa) is greater than the yield strength (100 MPa), the material will have exceeded its elastic limit and will not return to its original shape after the stress is removed.
