Teaching Character and Virtue in Schools James Arthur, Kristján Kristjánsson, Tom Harrison, Wouter Sanderse, Daniel Wright, 2016-07-15 Teaching Character and Virtue in Schools addresses the contemporary issues of quantification and measurement in educational settings The authors draw on the research of the Jubilee Centre at the University of Birmingham in order to investigate the concern that the conventional wisdom sound judgement and professional discretion of teachers is being diminished and control mistakenly given over to administrators policymakers and inspectors which in turn is negatively effecting pupils character development The books calls for subject competence to be complemented by practical wisdom and good character in teaching staff It posits that the constituent virtues of good character can be learned and taught that education is an intrinsically moral enterprise and that character education should be intentional organised and reflective The book draws on the Jubilee Centre s expertise in support of its claims and successfully integrates the fields of educational studies psychology sociology philosophy and theology in its examination of contemporary educational practices and their wider effect on society as a whole It offers sample lessons as well as a framework for character education in schools The book encourages the view that character education is about helping students grasp what is ethically important and how to act for the right reasons so that they can become more autonomous and reflective individuals within the framework of a democratic society Particularly interested readers will be educational leaders teachers those undertaking research in the field of education as well as policy analysts with a keen interest in developing the character and good sense of learners today

Teacher's Stories, Teacher's Lives Carola Conle, 2006 In this book we demonstrate a mode of teacher education that is practical in a non technical sense and relies on Dewey s notion of curriculum as the reconstruction of experience We present a curriculum that emerged through collaborative self reflection and seeks to reconstruct personal histories of schooling As four former preservice teachers and their instructor we engaged in jointly constructed autobiographical inquiry in order to generate data on our own past and on our current histories of teaching and learning We wanted to illuminate parts of our lives in schools that until now belonged to our normal and taken for granted past We did this in order to enjoy certain degrees of awareness and choice as to which of our living stories to reinforce and which to let run out in our classrooms today

Teaching Character in the Primary Classroom Tom Harrison, Ian Morris, John Ryan, 2016-03-10 Teaching Character in the Primary Classroom provides an excellent and very accessible overview of the emerging field of character education It covers in detail the theory of character education as well as advice and guidance about how this should be applied in practice in primary schools Professor James Arthur University of Birmingham Character matters As more and more schools are choosing to teach Character Education trainee and beginning teachers need to know more What is Character Education Can it really be taught How does children s learning benefit from discussions around character in the classroom How do I teach it What does good teaching of Character Education look like in the classroom Teaching Character Education in Primary schools tackles these questions and many more This is a practical guide to why and how we can teach character in primary schools It begins by exploring why character matters and considers what character is and importantly what it is not It goes on to discuss the place for teaching character in primary education and includes practical guidance on how it can be taught The text also looks at character beyond the classroom how parents and the wider community can be included in the teaching of character and how outdoor learning and education can contribute This book is written for all those who are new to teaching character
