1. What is the purpose of the study?
The purpose of the study is to investigate the effect of the new curriculum on the learning outcomes of the students in the field of biology.
2. What is the research design?
The research design is a quasi-experimental design, which involves comparing the learning outcomes of the students who were taught using the new curriculum with those of the students who were taught using the old curriculum.
3. What are the independent and dependent variables?
The independent variable is the curriculum (new vs. old). The dependent variable is the learning outcomes (test scores).
4. What are the data collection methods?
The data collection methods include pre-test, post-test, and a follow-up test. The pre-test was administered before the intervention, the post-test was administered after the intervention, and the follow-up test was administered three months after the intervention.
5. What are the data analysis methods?
The data analysis methods include descriptive statistics (mean, standard deviation) and inferential statistics (t-test, ANOVA).
6. What are the results of the study?
The results of the study show that the new curriculum had a significant positive effect on the learning outcomes of the students in the field of biology. The students who were taught using the new curriculum achieved significantly higher test scores than the students who were taught using the old curriculum.
7. What are the conclusions and recommendations?
The conclusions of the study are that the new curriculum is more effective than the old curriculum in improving the learning outcomes of the students in the field of biology. The recommendations of the study are that the new curriculum should be implemented in all schools and that further research should be conducted to investigate the long-term effects of the new curriculum.
