Melzian,Edward R. Long,Walter G. Whitford,Barbara T. Walton,2012-12-06 The monitoring of point sources by the Environmental Protection Agency EPA the states and the tribes has documented and helped reduce the levels of chemical stressors affecting our ecosystems With the controls on point sources reducing chemical contamination new environmental challenges associated with nonpoint sources have emerged To adequately deal with these new problems EPA s Office of Research and Development recognized the need to develop an overall understanding of the condition of our ecological resources the trends in their condition and the stressors affecting these systems on a broad scale Toward this end the Environmental Monitoring and Assessment Program EMAP was established by EPA and has been strategically developing the scientific tools and techniques to monitor and assess the status and trends of aquatic ecosystems EMAP scientists have developed new indicators and probability based designs to fill data gaps in the development of regional scale assessments of our aquatic resources as required in the Clean Water Act We have a scientifically defensible approach that allows 100 percent coverage of the aquatic resources within broad geographic areas and the formulation of reference conditions for establishing the health of these resources The use of these indicators and designs were successfully demonstrated in the landscapes streams and estuaries of the mid Atlantic states as part of the Mid Atlantic Integrated Assessment MAIA
