Neurological and Neuropsychiatric Disorders Affecting Military Personnel and Veterans Mary Jo Pugh, William Walker, Venkatagiri

Krishnamurthy, Lisa C. Krishnamurthy, Chen Lin, 2024-03-20 Active military personnel and Veterans of the military face unique neurologic and neuropsychiatric challenges unique to this population compared to the public. The military and Veteran population have faced traumatic experiences that lead to both physical and mental consequences. Amongst the important challenges unique to this population include traumatic brain injury, increased risk of neurological disorders such as dementia and stroke, and comorbid neuropsychiatric conditions. Unfortunately, many of these challenges also have a negative feedback loop such as brain injuries leading to post-traumatic stress disorder which can increase risk of Alzheimer's Dementia. Unfortunately, there are many gaps in knowledge to understand the unique challenges this population faces. There are many opportunities to improve our understanding of these challenges that military personnel and Veterans face. The goal of this Research Topic is to shine a light and improve understanding of these challenges. We aim to collect knowledge from the global network of researchers working on topics related to Neurological and Neuropsychiatric disorders affecting military personnel and Veterans. There are currently many gaps in the diagnosis, prevention, and treatment of conditions that affect this population disproportionately. This collection of work in the Frontiers in Neurology will give authors the opportunity to share with the global scientific community important research findings that address these gaps. For this collection, we are looking for submissions with topics that specifically address the unique challenges affecting military personnel and Veterans with Neurologic and Neuropsychiatric disorders.

Neurostimulation: Exploring Perceptual & Cognitive Enhancement

Adam Joseph Toth, Mark J. Campbell, Adam Bruton, 2025-08-06 Research investigating the use of electrical or magnetic stimuli to alter the electrophysiology of the central and peripheral nervous systems has flourished in recent years. The popularity of these techniques largely stems from their ability to create temporary lesions or enhancements in nervous system function. To date, a plethora of literature has emerged examining the role of neurostimulation for augmenting motor function due to the relative ease of objectively quantifying changes in behavior, performance, and even motor-evoked potential amplitudes within individual muscles. However, the role of neurostimulation in enhancing perceptual and cognitive abilities is under-examined and is an area that is now continually gaining research attention. Evaluating the role of various forms of neurostimulation on cognitive and perceptual abilities can be challenging due to the lack of control over the underlying neural activity in the central nervous system and the sensitivity with which current measurement tools and tasks quantify cognitive and perceptual functioning. This research topic aims to facilitate the publication of high-quality, methodologically sound research that addresses the quantification and effect that various forms of neurostimulation have on cognitive and perceptual processes across the lifespan. In doing so, we endeavor to help advance the field of neurostimulation with respect to robustly mapping the effect of neurostimulation on cognitive and perceptual performance.

Crossfire Bruce Stevens, 2008 As psychologists, we are highly trained mental health professionals. In the consulting room, we are generally in control and have a good feel for what is happening. However, in a court of law, it can be quite frightening as anything can happen The vulnerability we feel in a courtroom is a professional vulnerability This is because a psychologist can be made to think that his or her competence is on the line This is not usually the case but it is what it feels like It is important for us to realise that in court it is our opinion that matters But the process feels personal This book is written to help you develop understanding and skills so that you can feel confident in presenting expert evidence The format of the book is not simply to give you information instead it is also structured to reflect the way psychologists can develop professional competence through supervision You the reader will listen in on supervision sessions with Jason and Mary The book includes practical suggestions and a focus on skills as well as structured exercises to practise with peers While it is not intended to be comprehensive Crossfire s approach will touch on many of the issues that are important in the legal process Its particular focus is enabling psychologists in Australia to feel confident in court
