All Roads Lead to Power Kaitlin N. Sidorsky,2019-05-17 Speaking of cabinet appointments he d made as governor presidential candidate Mitt Romney famously spoke of having whole binders full of women to consider The line was much mocked and yet Kaitlin Sidorsky suggests it raises a point long overlooked in discussions of the gender gap in politics many more women are appointed rather than elected to political office Analyzing an original survey of political appointments at all levels of state government All Roads Lead to Power offers an expanded more nuanced view of women in politics This book also questions the manner in which political ambition particularly among women is typically studied and understood In a deep comparative analysis of appointed and elected state positions All Roads Lead to Power highlights how the differences between being appointed or elected explain why so many more women serve in appointed offices These women Sidorsky finds are not always victims of a much cited lack of self confidence or ambition or of a biased political sphere More often they make a conscious decision to enter politics through what they believe is a far less partisan and negative entry point Furthermore Sidorsky s research reveals that many women end up in political appointments at all levels not because they are ambitious to hold public office but because the work connects with their personal lives or careers With its groundbreaking research and insights into the ambitions recruitment and motivations of appointed officials Sidorsky s work broadens our conception of political representation and alters our understanding of how and why women pursue and achieve political power
