Technology has become increasingly important to both the function and our understanding of the justice process. Many forms of criminal behaviour are highly dependent upon technology and crime control has become a predominantly technologically driven process one where traditional technological aids such as fingerprinting or blood sample analysis are supplemented by a dizzying array of tools and techniques including surveillance devices and DNA profiling. This book offers the first comprehensive and holistic overview of global research on technology crime and justice. It is divided into five parts each corresponding with the key stages of the offending and justice process. Part I addresses the current conceptual understanding of technology within academia and the criminal justice system. Part II gives a comprehensive overview of the current relations between technology and criminal behaviour. Part III explores the current technologies within crime control and the ways in which technology underpins contemporary formal and informal social control. Part IV sets out some of the fundamental impacts technology is now having upon the judicial process. Part V reveals the emerging technologies for crime control and justice and considers the extent to which new technology can be effectively regulated. This landmark collection will be essential reading for academics, students and theorists within criminology, sociology, law, engineering and technology and computer science as well as practitioners and professionals working within and around the criminal justice system.

Sports Law in New Zealand Elizabeth Toomey, 2023-05-20

Derived from the renowned multi volume International Encyclopaedia of Laws, this practical analysis of sports law in New Zealand deals with the regulation of sports activity by both public authorities and private sports organizations. The growing internationalization of sports inevitably increases the weight of global regulation yet each country maintains its own distinct regime of sports law and its own national and local sports organizations. Sports law at a national or organizational level thus gains a growing relevance in comparative law. The book describes and discusses both state created rules and autonomous self regulation regarding the variety of economic, social, commercial, cultural and political aspects of sports activities. Self regulation manifests itself in the form of by laws and encompasses organizational provisions, disciplinary rules and rules of play. However, the trend towards more professionalism in sports and the growing economic, social and cultural relevance of sports have prompted an increasing reliance on legal rules adopted by public authorities. This form of regulation appears in a variety of legal areas including criminal law, labour law, commercial law, tax law, competition law and tort law and may vary following a particular type or sector of sport. It is in this dual and overlapping context that such much publicized aspects as doping, sponsoring and media and responsibility for injuries are legally measured. This monograph fills a gap in the legal literature by giving academics, practitioners, sports organizations and policy makers access to sports law at this specific level. Lawyers representing parties with interests in New Zealand will welcome this very useful guide and academics and researchers will appreciate its value in the study of
