Prepared by Emi Yamaguchi & Caitlin Bell (2007)

adult copepod

Copepods are the most common zooplankton worldwide. They are an integral part of the food web as both predator and prey.

copepod nauplius

The nauplius is a common early larval stage of crustaceans. Some nauplii have spines while others do not.

polychaete worm larvae

These organisms are the marine relative of earthworms. The larvae are found in the plankton. The adult form, seen in the invertebrate lab, is benthic.

barnacle nauplius

Barnacle nauplii are distinguished from crab larvae by the "spikes" on their heads. This stage comes before the cypris stage.

cypris larva

The cypris is the final larval stage of a barnacle. It must find a suitable attachment site to become an adult.

adult Oikopleura sp.

This organism is actually an adult tunicate that retains its notochord and tail. The tail beats back and forth rapidly to create a current that brings food near the mouth.

tunicate (sea squirt) larva

This "tadpole" is an early life stage of a tunicate. Tunicates are related to humans because they have a notochord, although it disappears as the larva matures. Sea squirts, found in the invertebrate lab, are adult tunicates.

Environmental Impact Statement for Preferred Alternative Location for a Fleet Ballistic Missile (FBM) Submarine Support Base, Kings Bay, Georgia, 1980 Pond Aquaculture Water Quality Management Claude E. Boyd, C.S.

Tucker, 2012-12-06 The efficient and profitable production of fish crustaceans and other aquatic organisms in aquaculture depends on a suitable environment in which they can reproduce and grow Because those organisms live in water the major environmental concern within the culture system is water quality Water supplies for aquaculture systems may naturally be of low quality or polluted by human activity but in most instances the primary reason for water quality impairment is the culture activity itself Manures fertilizers and feeds applied to ponds to enhance production only can be partially converted to animal biomass Thus at moderate and high production levels the inputs of nutrients and organic matter to culture units may exceed the assimilative capacity of the ecosystems The result is deteriorating water quality which stresses the culture species and stress leads to poor growth greater incidence of disease increased mortality and low production Effluents from aquaculture systems can cause pollution of receiving waters and pollution entering ponds in source water or chemicals added to ponds for management purposes can contaminate aquacultural products Thus water quality in aquaculture extends into the arenas of environmental protection and food quality and safety A considerable body of literature on water quality management in aquaculture has been accumulated over the past 50 years The first attempt to compile this information was a small book entitled Water Quality in Warmwater Fish Ponds Boyd I 979a American Book Publishing Record ,2003

Rogers,Nadine M. Johnston,Eugene J. Murphy,Andrew Clarke,2012-02-28 Since its discovery Antarctica has held a deep fascination for biologists Extreme environmental conditions seasonality and isolation have lead to some of the most striking examples of natural selection and adaptation on Earth Paradoxically some of these adaptations may pose constraints on the ability of the Antarctic biota to respond to climate change Parts of Antarctica are showing some of the largest changes in temperature and other environmental conditions in the world In this volume published in association with the Royal Society leading polar scientists present a synthesis of the latest research on the biological systems in Antarctica covering organisms from microbes to vertebrate higher predators This book comes at a time when new technologies and approaches allow the implications of climate change and other direct human impacts on Antarctica to be viewed at a range of scales across entire regions whole ecosystems and down to the level of species and variation within their genomes Chapters address both

Antarctic terrestrial and marine ecosystems and the scientific and management challenges of the future are explored
