1. The first step in the process of developing a new product is to identify a market need. This is often done through market research, which can involve surveys, focus groups, and other methods of gathering information about potential customers. 2. Once a market need has been identified, the next step is to develop a concept for the new product. This involves creating a detailed description of the product, including its features, benefits, and target market. 3. The third step is to conduct a feasibility study. This involves assessing the technical, financial, and market viability of the product concept. This step is crucial for determining whether the product is worth developing and marketing. 4. If the feasibility study is positive, the next step is to develop a business plan. This involves creating a detailed financial and marketing plan for the new product, including estimates of costs, revenues, and profits. 5. The final step in the process is to launch the product. This involves manufacturing the product, distributing it to retailers, and promoting it to potential customers.	1.
