One American's Story

On the morning of September 26, 1945, Lieutenant Colonel A. Peter Dewey was on his way to the Saigon airport in Vietnam. Only 28, Dewey served in the Office of Strategic Services, the chief intelligence-gathering body of the U.S. military and forerunner of the Central Intelligence Agency. Dewey was sent to assess what was becoming an explosive situation in Vietnam, a Southeast Asian country that had recently been freed from Japanese rule as a result of the allied victory in World War II. (See map on page 939.)

Before the war, France had ruled Vietnam and the surrounding countries; now it sought—with British aid—to regain control of the region. The Vietnamese had resisted Japanese occupation; now they were preparing to fight the French. Dewey saw nothing but disaster in France's plan: "Cochinchina [southern Vietnam] is burning," he reported, "the French and British are finished here, and we [the United States] ought to clear out of Southeast Asia."

On his way to the airport, Dewey encountered a roadblock staffed by Vietnamese soldiers and shouted at them in French. Presumably mistaking him for a French soldier, the guards shot him in the head. Thus, A. Peter Dewey, whose body was never recovered, was the first American to die in Vietnam.

Unfortunately, Dewey would not be the last. As Vietnam's independence effort came under communist influence, the United States grew increasingly concerned about the small country's future. Eventually, America would fight a war to halt the spread of communism in Vietnam. The war would claim the lives of almost 60,000 Americans and more than 2 million Vietnamese. It also would divide the American nation as no other event since the Civil War.

A. Peter Dewey

America Supports France in Vietnam

America's involvement in Vietnam began in 1950, during the French Indochina War, the name given to France's attempt to reestablish its rule in Vietnam after World War II. Seeking to strengthen its ties with France and to help fight the spread of communism, the United States provided the French with massive economic and military support.

Banner, 2014-08-15 This paper studies the lines of communications the Ho Chi Minh Trail which went from North to South Vietnam through Laos during the Second Indochina War The purpose of this paper is to study the proposal that the United States during the Vietnam War should have used ground forces in Laos to block these routes In providing background information this study examines the nature of the Ho Chi Minh Trail political and strategic considerations and US military actions which were applied against the trail network Studying the military feasibility of an interdiction effort on the ground this study finds that the US was physically capable of mounting an operation into Laos to block the Ho Chi Minh Trail The finding of this study is however that such a move would not by itself have provided a winning solution to the war Additionally such an attack into Laos would have had serious adverse consequences for that country and US desires for the region The conclusion of this study is that in this case the Second Indochina War a ground interdiction of enemy LOCs would not have been a productive course of action Territorial Separatism in Global Politics Damien Kingsbury, Costas Laoutides, 2015-03-05 This volume examines the various aspects of territorial separatism focusing on how and why separatist movements arise Featuring essays by leading scholars from different disciplinary perspectives the book aims to situate the question of separatism within the broader socio political context of the international system arguing that a set of historical events as well as local regional and global dynamics have converged to provide the catalysts that often trigger separatist conflicts In addition the book marks progress towards a new conceptual framework for the study of territorial separatism by linking the survival of communities in international politics with the effective control of territory and the consequent creation of new polities Separatist conflicts challenge conventional wisdom concerning conflict resolution within the context of international relations by unpacking a number of questions with regard to conflict transformation Through the use of case studies including Cyprus the Rakhine state in Myanmar the Shia separatism in Iraq the Uighurs in China and the case of East Timor the volume addresses key issues including the role of democracy international law intervention post conflict peacebuilding and the creation of new political entities The book will be of much interest to students of Intra State Conflict Resolution International Law Security Studies and International Relations

Alford,Suzanne Ferriss,2016-04-06 An Alternative History of Bicycles and Motorcycles Two Wheeled

Transportation and Material Culture accounts for the nineteenth century creation and development of two wheeled vehicles both human powered and motorized Specifically the book focuses on the period from 1885 which saw the appearance simultaneously of the Safety bicycle and the Einspur the first motorcycle to 1920 while exploring implications for later bicycling and motorcycling We argue that invention of these vehicles rather than the product of gifted individuals should be seen as the consequence of a number of historical economic cultural and political forces that intersect so unpredictably that the notion of a genius inventor is reductive The common evolutionary model of development from the bicycle to the motorcycle oversimplifies both the technology and its origins Stripping the vehicles of all their material and cultural associations such a model fails to advance our understanding of the devices their creators and their riders Taking a contemporary vehicle and tracing its lineage creates a false sense of evolutionary necessity in its creation and fails to account for the many possible developmental paths that were for whatever reason abandoned By contrast our book adopts a material culture approach a form of inquiry that stresses the connections between artifacts and social relations We consider not simply the bicycle and motorcycle as material objects but focus also on the complex socio political and economic convergences that produced the materials materials that in turn themselves shaped the vehicles appearance function and adoption by riders The Oberlin Evangelist ,1841
