Mapping the News

Patients with chronic heart failure (CHF) are at high risk of hospitalization and death. The purpose of this study was to evaluate the effect of a nurse-led, home-based, multidisciplinary intervention on the clinical outcomes of patients with CHF. The study was a randomized, controlled trial conducted in a tertiary care hospital. The intervention group received a nurse-led, home-based, multidisciplinary intervention, while the control group received standard care. The primary outcome was the rate of hospitalization, and the secondary outcome was the rate of death. The intervention group had a significantly lower rate of hospitalization (15.2% vs. 22.8%, $p = 0.001$) and a significantly lower rate of death (12.5% vs. 18.7%, $p = 0.001$) compared to the control group. The intervention was well tolerated and had a low cost. These findings suggest that a nurse-led, home-based, multidisciplinary intervention can improve the clinical outcomes of patients with CHF.
