points out that emphasizing individuality and promoting the greatest fulfillment of the desires of the individual conjointly lead to destruction. The book promotes the basic value choices of Buddhism namely happiness, peace, and permanence. Happiness research convincingly shows that not material wealth but the richness of personal relationships determines happiness. Not things but people make people happy. Western economics tries to provide people with happiness by supplying enormous quantities of things, and today's dominating business models are based on and cultivate narrow self-centeredness. But what people need are caring relationships and generosity. Buddhist economics makes these values accessible by direct provision. Peace can be achieved in nonviolent ways. Wanting less can substantially contribute to this endeavor and make it happen more easily. Permanence or ecological sustainability requires a drastic cutback in the present level of consumption and production globally. This reduction should not be an inconvenient exercise of self-sacrifice. In the noble ethos of reducing suffering, it can be a positive development path for humanity.
