Science in the Marketplace Aileen Fyfe, Bernard Lightman, 2007-09-10 The nineteenth century was an age of transformation in science when scientists were rewarded for their startling new discoveries with increased social status and authority But it was also a time when ordinary people from across the social spectrum were given the opportunity to participate in science for education entertainment or both In Victorian Britain science could be encountered in myriad forms and in countless locations in panoramic shows exhibitions and galleries in city museums and country houses in popular lectures and even in domestic conversations that revolved around the latest books and periodicals Science in the Marketplace reveals this other side of Victorian scientific life by placing the sciences in the wider cultural marketplace ultimately showing that the creation of new sites and audiences was just as crucial to the growing public interest in science as were the scientists themselves By focusing attention on the scientific audience as opposed to the scientific community or self styled popularizers Science in the Marketplace ably links larger societal changes in literacy in industrial technologies and in leisure to the evolution of popular science
