

TREE OF LIFE

THE TREE OF LIFE is a diagram that shows the evolutionary relationships between various organisms. It is a branching diagram that starts from a common ancestor at the bottom and branches outwards to show the divergence of life into different species. The tree is color-coded to represent different taxonomic groups: yellow for the base (bacteria and archaea), blue for eukaryotes, green for plants, red for fungi, and brown for animals. The tree is populated with numerous circular icons, each representing a different species. The icons are arranged in a way that shows the divergence and evolution of life over time. The tree is set against a light gray background.
