The Lautsi Papers: Multidisciplinary Reflections on Religious Symbols in the Public School Classroom Jeroen Temperman, 2012-09-06 Increasingly debates about religious symbols in the public space are reformulated as human rights questions and put before national and international judges. Particularly in the area of education legitimate interests are manifold and often collide. Children's educational and religious rights, parental liberties vis-à-vis their children's religious traditions, state obligations in the area of public school education, the state neutrality principle and the professional rights and duties of teachers are all principles that may warrant priority attention. Each from their own discipline and perspective ranging from legal, human rights, scholars, legal philosophers, political scientists, comparative law scholars and country specific legal experts, these experts contribute to the question of whether in the present day pluralist state there is room for state symbolism, e.g. crucifixes in classroom or personal religious signs, e.g. cross necklaces or kirpans or attire, e.g. kippahs or headscarves in the public school classroom. Symbolism 14

Rüdiger Ahrens, Klaus Stierstorfer, 2014-12-12 Symbolic representation is a crucial subject for and a potent heuristic instrument of diaspora studies. This special focus inquires into the forms and functions of symbols of diaspora both in aesthetic practice and in critical discourse, analyzing and theorizing symbols from Shakespeare to Bollywood as well as in critical writings of theorists of diaspora. What kinds of symbols and symbolic practices contributors ask are germane to the representation both emic and etic of diasporics and diasporas. How are specific symbols and symbolic practices analyzed across the academic fields contributing to diaspora studies? Which symbols and symbolic practices inform the academic study of diasporas, sometimes unconsciously or without being remarked on? To study these phenomena is to engage in a dialogue that aims at refining the theoretical and methodological vocabulary and practice of truly transdisciplinary diaspora studies while attending to the imperative of specificity that inheres in this emerging field. The volume collects a range of analyses from social anthropology, history and ethnography to literary and film studies, all combining readings of individual symbolic practices with meta-theoretical reflections.

Brands, Consumers, Symbols and Research Sidney J. Levy, 1999-08-11 The 54 collected works in this volume provide an opportunity for the reader to determine whether Sidney's work individually and/or collectively qualify as a masterpiece. For me, Sidney has created more individual pieces of his work that merit this status than any other marketing scholar I know. Collectively, the work in this volume is a masterpiece of insight into the social enterprise that is marketing. Again, I don't know anyone whose career-long program of thought is so extraordinarily rich in imagination and practical value. He challenges, provokes, excites, soothes and supports us with one or another of his writings from the foreword by Gerald Zaltman, Harvard Business School. For the first time, the writings of marketing legend Sidney J. are available in this comprehensive collection of significant scholarly essays and studies in the field of marketing. And what a compendium this is Dennis Rook a former student of Sidney J Levy has compiled the work of this prolific internationally recognized and award winning writer whose ideas began to influence marketing executives in the late 1940s His ideas continue to impact how we think about marketing s role in management how managers develop products and brands how they understand their consumers and how corporate and academic researchers investigate marketplace concerns Brands Consumers Symbols and Research is an exciting and definitive volume that should have a place on the bookshelves of every marketing professional educator and student around the globe
