

Writing Genres Posters

Display posters based on the genres;
Narrative, Explanation, Recount, Report,
Procedural & Discussion

Discussion

A discussion text presents all sides of an issue. It outlines the issue and makes points for and against. It often concludes by stating an opinion.

Title	A short statement about the topic	→
Overview	A brief statement of the author's view of the main topic
Reasons	The points supporting the author's view; the author's view may be supported or not
Conclusion	Summarizing statement about the topic

Report

A report presents information about an object, animal, person or place.

Title	Summarize the thing
Introduction	Tells what the thing is and is called, where it is and what it is
Description	Tells what the thing has, what it looks like, where it lives or how it grows, and gives information about it
Conclusion	Shows a helpful statement on the thing

Recount

A recount tells about events that have happened to you or other people. Recounts can be fiction or non-fiction.

Title	A brief sentence that summarizes the event.
Orientation	Tells the reader what, where, and when the event took place, and why it's important.
Events	Tells the events in the order they happened.
Ending	Tells how the experience ended and how the feelings you may have about it.

Procedural

A procedure that tells how to do something or how to make something.

Title Defines what is being investigated

Goal Tells what the procedure aims to accomplish

Materials Describes all that is required to complete the procedure

Method Describes step-by-step how to complete the procedure

Conclusion Tells to check if the procedure works

Making a Conclusion

Did you follow the procedure? Did you get the expected results? Did you find any errors?

To make a conclusion of the experiment:

1. State the aim of the experiment.
2. State the hypothesis.
3. State the results.
4. State the conclusion.

Start the conclusion by stating the aim of the experiment. Then state the hypothesis. Then state the results. Then state the conclusion. The conclusion should be based on the results of the experiment. It should state whether the hypothesis was accepted or rejected. It should also state any errors or limitations of the experiment.

Narrative

A narrative retells events. Narratives are often long, eg. stories, but may include some information. Each part or event is in a separate paragraph.

Title	Usually necessary to get the attention of the reader.
Setting	The starting point of the story. It tells what time the action takes place and where it begins.
Complication (something new or unusual)	The events that develop the action and make the story more interesting. The events that happen on the way toward the end of the problem.
Resolution	Tells how the problem is solved.
Ending	Tells what has come from the story.

Explanation

Explanation texts tell how something works. They are used in all the arts and sciences. Explanations have five parts to their framework:

Title	This is a short statement or statement about the topic.
Definition	Defines the thing or process.
Description	Describes the parts or elements in the process.
How does it work or function?	Explains the parts or elements in the process.
Application	Purpose of the subject, machine or process.
