1. Example: Suppose you have a 1000-unit apartment building. The market rent is $1000 per unit per month. The current occupancy is 90%. The current operating expenses are $200 per unit per month. The current net operating income is $800 per unit per month. The current debt service is $100 per unit per month. The current cash flow is $700 per unit per month. The current value of the building is $100,000. The current cap rate is 7%. The current yield is 8%. The current return on investment is 9%. The current internal rate of return is 10%. The current net present value is $10,000. The current payback period is 10 years. The current sensitivity analysis shows that the net present value is sensitive to changes in the market rent, occupancy, operating expenses, debt service, and cash flow.
