Writing For Love:

How to Write a Love Letter Barrie Dolnick, Donald Baack, 2010-03-31 No one can resist a love letter Love letters are largely a lost and forgotten art Not long ago suitors used the written word to work magic and people were swept off their feet by a sweet sincere note How to Write a Love Letter teaches us once again how to reinvent this most meaningful of arts In today's rushed individualistic society love letters are more potent than ever before They embody and convey the mysterious the unexpected and the most utterly thoughtful A love letter can be anything from a brisk casual E mail asking a love interest to coffee to a handwritten marriage proposal that will serve as a family treasure always Fun flirtatious intimate provocative a love letter can be any and all of these things Even the simplest letter can cause a stir Barrie Dolnick and Donald Baack have collected a wide range of letters from old family keepsakes to casual and proper office E mails The authors demonstrate and explain to both women and men that writing a love letter is about turning sincere affection or intrigue into a unique cherishable gesture no matter how small the occasion or how short and uncomplicated the note Whether you're shy and have trouble expressing your feelings face to face or you're a romantic at heart who wants to learn more effective ways to communicate How to Write a Love Letter is your ultimate inspiration and guide Go ahead Fan the flames of a fledgling romance or tell your husband of forty years that you still adore him as much as you did the day you first married him Words are sexy romantic and wondrous Letters are legacies Learn the art today and improve your life Julie My life is starting to become different even if my days seem the same And I must confess that it's you who has changed my outlook You have opened my eyes to some amazing new possibilities Your touch is so gentle your kisses are so delicious and your body is soft when it presses against me I will forever be filled with a new sense of wonder and joy because you have shared these things with me I must confess that in some ways I feel inadequate Can I match your gentleness Can I give any feeling as warm and secure as the one you have bestowed on me You have chosen to show me such strong passion combined with such sweet affection and I can only hope you feel a glimpse of the same from me Our time together is very special There are very few moments that a man knows will linger with him for the rest of his life and you have already given me many Thank you for being such an extraordinary part of my life I hope we will continue this journey together for a long time to come John

Writing Love Katharine Ann Jensen, 1995 In this compelling new addition to Sandra M Gilbert's Ad Feminam Women and Literature series Katharine Ann Jensen examines the cultural form of the love letter and its intersection with the novel in the works of seventeenth and eighteenth century French women writers Traditionally French literary history has focused on eighteenth century male writers Rousseau and Laclos as the master artists of the epistolary novel That emphasis on one century one gender and one epistolary form the novel obscures the history of women's writing in France In the seventeenth century the love letter was viewed as a feminine literary form in which a woman's passionate and emotional nature found its logical expression Such emotional writing was criticized for its structural and grammatical imperfections rendering it in the eyes of men invalid as true literary material. However, men often wrote under female pseudonyms composing letters of seduction and betrayal that were published as true accounts. Jensen contends that men disguised their words as women's words because writing as women allowed them to experiment with narrative fiction at a time when men's writing was rigidly defined by classical rhetoric. She further argues that men were able to moderate women's linguistic strengths by limiting their epistolary expertise to a social rather than literary practice, thereby maintaining literature as an almost exclusively male province. Jensen argues for a tradition of women's writing by examining both the love letters and novels of such writers as Desjardins, Ferrand, Graffigny, Riccoboni, and Lespinasse. In her novel Les D sordres de l amour, Desjardins' Madame de Villedieu creates an ambitious letter-writing heroine. Through an analysis of the textual similarities between the heroine's letters and Desjardins's personal love letters to her unfaithful lover, Jensen concludes that Desjardins rewrites her own unfortunate epistolary relationship. Jensen draws similar conclusions from an examination of the personal letters of Ferrand in relation to her novel Histoire des amours de Cl ante et de B lise. In order to chart the legacy of seventeenth-century feminine epistolarity, Jensen goes on to consider the works of eighteenth-century French women writers. Like Desjardins's novel, Graffigny's Lettres d une P ruvienne and Riccoboni's Lettres de Mistress Fanni Butlerd present letter-writing heroines who overturn the conventions of seduction and betrayal in order to claim their independence and desire to write. This desire correlates to Graffigny's and Riccoboni's own writing ambitions, thereby asserting the ability of women to write self-consciously rather than emotionally and to create narrative fiction rather than cyclical letters of love and suffering. Jensen demonstrates that these assertions constitute a significant break with seventeenth-century ideas about feminine letter-writing that inextricably bind women to a supposedly natural language of sexual and literary disempowerment. This important and insightful book will prove a valuable addition to the libraries of scholars in French seventeenth and eighteenth-century studies, feminist studies, epistolary fiction, and novel and narrative studies.
