SECTION 17.1 LIQUID WATER AND ITS PROPERTIES (pages 475–478)

This section explains the hydrogen bonding that occurs in water molecules and how high surface tension and low vapor pressure can be explained in terms of hydrogen bonding.

► The Water Molecule (pages 475–476)

1. What unique molecular compound is the foundation of all life on Earth?

water

2. Approximately what fraction of Earth's surface is covered in water? 3/4

3. Circle the letter next to each sentence that is true concerning water molecules.

a. Each O — H covalent bond in a water molecule is nonpolar.

☒ b. In a water molecule, the less electronegative hydrogen atoms acquire a slight positive charge and the oxygen atom acquires a slight negative charge.

☒ c. Because the water molecule has an H — O — H bond angle of 105° , the molecule as a whole is polar.

4. The diagram below depicts a water molecule. Complete the labels showing the locations of the hydrogen atoms, the oxygen atom, and the regions of positive and negative charge.

5. List five important properties of water that result from hydrogen bonding.

- a. high surface tension
- b. low vapor pressure
- c. high specific heat capacity
- d. high heat of vaporization
- e. high boiling point

Selected Water Resources Abstracts ,1989 Nuclear Corrosion Science and Engineering Damien Feron,2012-02-21

Corrosion of nuclear materials i e the interaction between these materials and their environments is a major issue for plant safety as well as for operation and economic competitiveness Understanding these corrosion mechanisms the systems and materials they affect and the methods to accurately measure their incidence is of critical importance to the nuclear industry Combining assessment techniques and analytical models into this understanding allows operators to predict the service life of corrosion affected nuclear plant materials and to apply the most appropriate maintenance and mitigation options to ensure safe long term operation This book critically reviews the fundamental corrosion mechanisms that affect nuclear power plants and facilities Initial sections introduce the complex field of nuclear corrosion science with detailed chapters on the different types of both aqueous and non aqueous corrosion mechanisms and the nuclear materials susceptible to attack from them This is complemented by reviews of monitoring and control methodologies as well as modelling and lifetime prediction approaches Given that corrosion is an applied science the final sections review corrosion issues across the range of current and next generation nuclear reactors and across such nuclear applications as fuel reprocessing facilities radioactive waste storage and geological disposal systems With its distinguished editor and international team of expert contributors Nuclear corrosion science and engineering is an invaluable reference for nuclear metallurgists materials scientists and engineers as well as nuclear facility operators regulators and consultants and researchers and academics in this field Comprehensively reviews the fundamental corrosion mechanisms that affect nuclear power plants and facilities Chapters assess different types of both aqueous and non aqueous corrosion mechanisms and the nuclear materials susceptible to attack from them Considers monitoring and control methodologies as well as modelling and lifetime prediction approaches held in Zichron Yaakov Israel on 16-21 September 2000 This book is the complete collection of the invited lectures presented at the Symposium Research interest in the fundamental properties of water and water mediated phenomena has generated a wealth of new knowledge and novel technological applications in widely diverse areas food science agriculture microbial and plant physiology and metabolism human health environment The title of the Symposium Water Science for Food Health

Agriculture and Environment was defined so as to reflect this diversity True to the tradition set by previous ISOPOW meetings ISOPOW 2000 was planned according to the Gordon Conference concept About 110 participants not including accompanying guests and students from 21 different countries attended the Symposium The scientific programme consisted of 22 invited lectures 60 poster presentations and two sessions of expert panel discussions with audience participation Two additional sessions were devoted to the oral presentation and discussion of selected posters Sufficient time for discussion was allocated at each session and between sessions and this was utilized well by the participants The scientific level of the program met with extreme participant satisfaction One of the most significant events of the Symposium was the panel discussion session entitled Critical Issues Related to Water Activity The original views and ideas expressed at this session and the heated discussion around controversial issues and open questions should lead to the following conclusion Water Science will continue to generate new material of utmost importance and high scientific quality for many more ISOPOW meetings to
