Postwar Europe and the Early Cold War

Objectives

Describe the war, its aftermath

1. explain the Cold War and its effects around the world;
2. describe how international peacekeeping organizations established support points and secondary fronts, after the war;
3. evaluate American Cold War foreign policies, especially its strategies;
4. explain how ideological motives shaped the Cold War.

The Cold War

The war's aftermath is the difference between a world of peace and a world of warfare.

The United States forces that defeated the Axis powers, and the war was over. But the situation for peace was unclear. At the time, a Conference on International Organization, organized in the aftermath of power in postwar Europe, which was led by President, Harry Truman, discussed the United Nations and security. After several sessions, the four major powers (the United States, United Kingdom, France, and Soviet Union) decided that the world was divided into two blocks.

The Soviet Union was a communist nation with centralized control. It was dominated by the Soviet Union and its satellite states.

The United States, in contrast, was a capitalist country with a free market and a democratic system.

The United States feared that the Soviet Union and its satellite states, dominated
