

Water Quality and Contamination

Abstraction

The quality of H₂O is indispensable to our ecosystem and all living animals. In this study, I will reexamine three experiments in which I performed. The first experiment was of the effects of groundwater taint, the 2nd experiment was the H₂O intervention procedure and the last was imbibing H₂O quality. The intent of the first experiment is to demo the effects of when ordinary family points such as oil, acetum, and laundry detergent are mixed into our H₂O supply and foul our H₂O system. The consequences of this experiment were that the H₂O became oily, smelly, and unserviceable. The intent of the 2nd experiment is to demo how our planet of course filtrates drinkable imbibing H₂O. The method used required potting dirt, sand, wood coal, and crushed rock to of course filter the H₂O. The experiment resulted in a drinkable H₂O. The last experiment is to prove the quality of regular pat H₂O compared to bottled H₂O. The trial consequences showed that the quality of tap H₂O is equal to, and in some instances were better than, commercialized bottled H₂O. The purpose of all three of these experiments is to raise the consciousness of the necessity of holding quality H₂O supply.

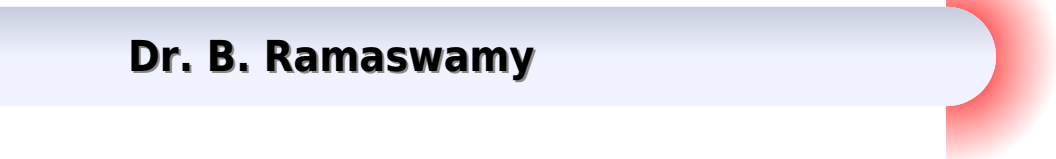

Introduction

Water is one of the most of import resources on Earth. Water covers about 70 % of the earth's surface and the human organic structure ranges from 50 to 70 % of the human organic structure. The quality of H₂O is really of import to our environment and for our ingestion. We use H₂O for many things like irrigation, medical intents and to cleanse. Therefore, the quality of H₂O is of importance because it plays a critical function in our ecological system. If our planet does non hold acceptable H₂O quality it would destruct our flora, ocean population, carnal life, and/or human life. The absence of quality H₂O in our universe would impact our manner of life and interrupt our ecological system. In this category, we conducted many three different H₂O experiments. The intent of the experiments was to learn about functional H₂O, land H₂O, surface H₂O, H₂O contaminates, H₂O intervention, and the quality of different imbibing Watersss. The intent of my survey is to raise consciousness to the readers of this survey on the importance of quality H₂O for our environment. "Surface H₂O quality has increasing importance worldwide and is peculiarly relevant in the semiarid North-central Chile, where agribusiness and excavation activities are enforcing heavy force per unit area on limited H₂O resources".

One experiment was to learn the effects of groundwater taint. These contaminations are points that we use in our places every twenty-four hours, but we ne'er realize what effects they have on our H₂O system once they are assorted into our H₂O supply. Another experiment was conducted to demo the assortment of common pollutants that enter our H₂O supply system because of mundane human activity. The experiment used a similar process that waste

Mehanna, Salah el- Haggag, 2001 Environmental pollution is a concern of many people in Egypt and the world in general People and Pollution is a study of how Egyptians in particular understand environmental problems and what their roles are in the solutions This original study is based on extensive field research with both academic and policy relevance The uniqueness of the book comes from its focus instead of the usual approach of analyzing policy and measurements this text seeks to understand how the people themselves often the objects of policy understand their environment and their own actions An interesting finding from the research lies in the focus of Egyptian concerns Rather than the global perspective the depletion of the ozone layer protection of coral reefs and rainforests and so on that is common in the West Egyptians are mainly concerned with matters of immediate environmental degradation such as garbage sewage dirty streets and noise pollution In addition the researchers have found that people are often able to effect changes themselves through cooperation with neighbors thus bypassing the official channels of redress such as NGOs and local government officials The difference in focus of concern and courses of action may be extrapolated to many Third World or developing nations and leads to provocative questions regarding policymaking for public participation in future environmental campaigns Descriptive views from the authors eloquent and moving testimony from members of the community and clear statistical analysis of the findings make this book a highly readable text People and Pollution is a pioneering and important work that should be consulted by environmentally concerned readers students and policymakers alike
