

Type of Lead	Boring Lead	Engaging Lead
Dialogue This lead begins with dialogue, or two or more people talking.	There was a bat in our house last summer.	"Quick, hit the floor," my dad yelled. "Whatever you do, don't look up!" my mother added as I dropped to the floor and slid myself under my bed. It was a terrifying night for my family when we discovered a bat in our house.
Sound Effect This lead gets the reader quickly involved with the story by using onomatopoeia, or sound words.	There was a loud storm outside my house last night.	Smash! The window cracked, the wind howled, and the door flung open. Rain poured in through the screen, drenching the welcome mat inside our house. I will never forget the fierce storm that invaded my house last night.
Action This lead starts with an exciting event or some kind of action.	I was excited for my birthday party.	I threw on my favorite red dress and scrambled down the stairs as fast as I could. It was my 8 th birthday, and I couldn't wait for the party to begin.
Setting This lead uses descriptive language to describe the setting.	One day my family and I went to the beach.	As I stepped out of the car, the cool, calm breeze blew through my hair. The hot sun sizzled on my skin. All I could see, for miles and miles, was the deep blue lake, glistening in the sun. I had been waiting for this day, an entire day on the beach with my family.

Story in Children's Lives: Contributions of the Narrative Mode to Early Childhood Development, Literacy, and Learning Kelli Jo Kerry-Moran,Juli-Anna Aerila,2019-09-27 This book is based on the power of stories to support children in all areas of their lives It examines the role narratives can play in encouraging growth in contexts and domains such as personal and family identity creative movement memory and self concept social relationships or developing a sense of humor Each chapter describes innovative and research based applications of narratives such as movement stories visual narratives to develop historical thinking multimodal storytelling bibliotherapy mathematics stories family stories and social narratives The chapters elaborate on the strength of narratives in supporting the whole child in diverse contexts from young children on the autism spectrum improving their social skills at school to four and five year olds developing historical thinking to children who are refugees or asylum seekers dealing with uncertainty and loss Written by accomplished teachers researchers specialists teaching artists and teacher educators from several countries and backgrounds the book fills a gap in the literature on narratives this work delves into the topic of narratives in young children s lives with a breadth of topics and depth of study not found elsewhere Collectively the insights of the contributors build a convincing case for emphasizing story across the various disciplines and developmental domains of the early childhood years The writing style is scholarly yet accessible Authors used a wide array of visual material to make their points clearer and show the reader what meaningful uses of story look like Mary Renck Jalongo Journal and Book Series Editor Springer Indiana PA USA The Rhyme and Story First- Reader Mrs. Etta Austin Blaisdell McDonald,Mary Frances Blaisdell,1918 The Children's Story of the War Edward Parrott,1917 Children's Literature Barbara Stoodt,1996 Narrative and Dramatic Approaches to Children's Life Story with Foster, Adoptive and Kinship Families Joan E. Moore,2019-12-06 Narrative and Dramatic Approaches to Children s Life Story with Foster Adoptive and Kinship Families outlines narrative and dramatic approaches to improve vulnerable family relationships It provides a model which offers new ways for parents to practise communicating with their children and develop positive relationships The book focuses on the Theatre of Attachment model a highly innovative approach which draws from a strong theoretical base to demonstrate the importance of narrative and dramatic play for sharing the children's life history in the family home with their adoptive foster or kinship parents. An emphasis is on having fun ways to work through complex feelings and divided loyalties so as to secure attachment. This practice model aims to raise children's self-esteem and communication skills and to combat the profound effects of abuse/neglect on trauma on children's development. This book will be of great interest for academics, postgraduate students, universities and Training bodies, service providers and practitioners involved in social work and creative therapies, child psychologists, child psychotherapists and public and private adoption and foster care agencies.

Children in Play, Story, and School Artin G?nc?, Elisa Klein, 2001-07-19. Imaginative play and story telling occupy key roles in children's psychological development and socialization. Bringing together leading contributors, this volume explores what play and story mean to young children and how these vital aspects of development can best be supported in child care and educational settings. Vital connections are drawn between children's activities, their interpersonal relationships and their emerging cognitive and affective capacities. Topics covered include promoting social play in the classroom, storytelling and literacy development and the influences of early caregiving experiences on attachment and learning. Theoretical and methodological issues in these areas of research are also addressed as well as social policy implications. The book is inspired by the work of Greta G. Fein, the pioneering teacher researcher and child care policymaker who has contributed an integrative concluding chapter.

Cognitive Development in Museum Settings David M. Sobel, Jennifer L. Jipson, 2015-10-30. Researchers in cognitive development are gaining new insights into the ways in which children learn about the world. At the same time, there has been increased recognition of the important role that visits to informal learning institutions play in supporting learning. Research and practice pursuits typically unfold independently and often with different goals and methods, making it difficult to make meaningful connections between laboratory research in cognitive development and practices in informal education. Recently, groundbreaking partnerships between researchers and practitioners have resulted in innovative strategies for linking findings in cognitive development together with goals critical to museum practitioners such as exhibit evaluation and design. Cognitive Development in Museum Settings offers an account of ways in which researchers in cognitive development partner with museum practitioners. Each chapter describes a partnership between academic researchers and museum practitioners and details their collaboration, the important research that has resulted from their partnership and the benefits and challenges of maintaining their relationship. This approach illustrates cutting-edge developmental science but also considers how researcher/practitioner interactions affect research outcomes and provide insight to questions common to practitioners. In addition, each set of researchers and practitioners discusses issues brought up by the partnership by posing questions concerning research/practice partnerships and research evidence, considering whether and how cognitive development research conducted in museum settings aligns with larger disciplinary interests in that field and examining to what extent museum practitioners benefit from applying research on the development of cognitive processes to their educational practices
