Growth by Accident, Death by Planning Bob Whitesel, 2010-10-01 It is a familiar experience A congregation that had been growing in numbers and spiritual vitality reaches a plateau and then begins to decline Most of the time the plateau occurs long before the church arrives at the optimum number of members it hoped to attract What has happened here Why does growth slow down stop and then decline The real question to ask says Bob Whitesel is why the church grew in the first place Most of the time young growing churches make a series of decisions based not upon careful planning and analysis but rather upon necessity and intuition Thus these decisions are not planned strategies but strategies that often occur by accident owing their genesis to circumstance These unplanned strategic decisions are driven not by knowledge but often simply by the church's environment When that growth slows these same churches begin to engage in more careful planning The problem is that this planning so often ignores the considerations and decisions that led to the church's growth to begin with The result is stagnation and eventual decline In the plain direct style that is his hallmark Whitesel lays out where churches go wrong in their planning for growth and how they can correct themselves He does so by looking at three related phenomena first the factors that cause initial growth second the erroneous decisions that lead to getting stuck on the plateau and finally corrective steps that churches can take to regain growth and vitality

The Liberal Arts College Adapting to Change Gary Bonvillian, Robert Murphy, 2014-02-04 Social economic and market conditions have posed a serious threat to the survival of small schools This book focuses on the adaptation of small private and predominantly liberal arts colleges to the changing conditions and demands of higher education The ability of small schools to remain a force in the American system of higher education is a compelling story and an example of the strategic management of academic organizations The history and accomplishments of one school in particular Keuka College in New York State is profiled in detail with emphasis on the role of the administration and the faculty in institutional decision making The study found that the increasing pressures to respond quickly to external conditions require a willingness to make decisions that often challenge traditional norms in the relationship between administration and faculty The book also examines recent initiatives of other schools to competitively position themselves Accepting the reality that all colleges and universities compete for students small schools have demonstrated an extraordinary ability to apply new and creative management practices many of which are examined in the book In addition to academic leaders other audiences such as boards faculty historians and scholars of higher education will find the book a valuable reference
