

Strategic Management – Chapter Summaries

Chapter 1: Strategic Management and Strategic Competitiveness

- Firms use the strategic management process to achieve strategic competitiveness and earn above-average returns. Firms analyze the external environment and their internal organization, then formulate and implement a strategy to achieve a desired level of performance (A-S-P). The firm's level of strategic competitiveness and the extent to which it earns above-average returns reflects its performance. Firms achieve strategic competitiveness by developing and implementing a value-creating strategy. Above-average returns (in excess of what investors expect to earn from other investments with similar levels of risk) provide the foundation for satisfying all of a firm's stakeholders simultaneously.
- The fundamental nature of competition is different in the current competitive landscape. As a result, those making strategic decisions must adopt a different mind-set, one that allows them to learn how to compete in highly turbulent and chaotic environments that produce a great deal of uncertainty. The globalization of industries and their markets along with rapid and significant technological changes are the two primary factors contributing to the turbulence of the competitive landscape.
- Firms use two major models to help develop their vision and mission when choosing one or more strategies to pursue strategic competitiveness and above-average returns. The core assumption of the I/O model is that the firm's external environment has a larger influence on the choice of strategies than does its internal resources, capabilities, and core competencies. Thus, firms use the I/O model to understand the effects an industry's characteristics can have on them when selecting a strategy or strategies to use to compete against rivals. The logic supporting the I/O model suggests that firms earn above-average returns by locating an attractive industry or part of an attractive industry and then implementing the strategy dictated by that industry's characteristics successfully. The core assumption of the resource-based model is that the firm's unique resources, capabilities, and core competencies have more of an influence on selecting and using strategies than does the firm's external environment. When firms use their valuable, rare, costly-to-imitate, and non-substitutable resources and capabilities effectively when competing against rivals in one or more industries, they earn above-average returns. Evidence indicates that both models' insights help firms as they select and implement strategies. Thus, firms want to use their unique resources, capabilities, and core competencies as the foundation to engage in one or more strategies that allow them to compete effectively against rivals.
- The firm's vision and mission guide its selection of strategies based on the information from analyses of its external environment and internal organization. Vision is a picture of what the firm wants to be and, in broad terms, what it wants to achieve ultimately. Flowing from the vision, the mission specifies the business or businesses in which the firm intends to compete and the customers it intends to serve. Vision and mission provide direction to the firm and signal important descriptive information to stakeholders.
