

	1. Introduction The purpose of this study is to investigate the effects of the proposed intervention on the learning outcomes of the students. The study is designed to be a quasi-experimental study, which means that the researchers do not randomly assign participants to the intervention and control groups. Instead, they use pre-existing groups of students.
	2. Methodology The study was conducted in a classroom setting. The participants were 30 students who were enrolled in the course. The intervention was implemented over a period of 10 weeks. The control group received the standard instruction, while the intervention group received the proposed intervention. The data was collected through a series of tests and assignments.
	3. Results The results of the study show that the proposed intervention had a significant positive effect on the learning outcomes of the students. The intervention group performed significantly better than the control group on all the tests and assignments. The effect size was medium to large, indicating that the intervention had a meaningful impact on the students' learning.
	4. Conclusion The study concludes that the proposed intervention is an effective way to improve the learning outcomes of the students. The intervention should be implemented in other classrooms to further investigate its effectiveness. The study also highlights the need for more research on the effects of the proposed intervention on different groups of students.
