Handbook of Spinal Cord Monitoring S.J. Jones, S. Boyd, M. Hetreed, N.J. Smith, 2012-12-06 Surgery for the treatment of deformities such as scoliosis carries a small but significant risk of damage to the spinal cord through inadvertent compression or interference with the blood supply Electrophysiological techniques principally those for recording sensory and motor evoked potentials offer a means of continuously assessing the conduction of nerve signals up and down the spinal cord and hence the possibility of detecting a defect at an early stage when the cause may be reversible This form of monitoring is now accepted practice in many countries The main contributors to the Handbook are surgeons neurophysiologists and anaesthetists at the forefront of research From the United States where practice has been most widespread come the results of the first large scale multi centre survey into monitoring methods and their effectiveness The research papers forming the remainder of the text provide an indication of the high level of current interest and the likely direction of future developments

Handbook of Neurological Rehabilitation Richard J. Greenwood, Thomas M. McMillan, Michael P. Barnes, Christopher D. Ward, 2005-08-16 Changes in the focus of neurological practice worldwide have led to the need for new standard texts that reflect the current state of this expanding area of clinical expertise The second edition of the Handbook of Neurological Rehabilitation is a major reference source that fulfils this need providing an invaluable resource for all professions that work with patients suffering from neurological disorders It brings restorative neurology to the bedside and shows how a reiterative goal oriented problem solving training programme can benefit patients sometimes on a scale not achieved by pharmacological or surgical interventions The book is divided into three sections all of which have been updated Section One explores the clinical and biological principles underpinning rehabilitation practice in the context of neurological disablement Section Two describes the assessment treatment and management of the major physical cognitive and behavioural impairments and the resulting functional deficits that may follow or accompany neurological disease The final section explores in more detail these problems and their management in relation to the more common specific disorders of the nervous system The text emphasises the fact that rehabilitation is an ongoing process involving multidisciplinary problem solving goal setting and education in which organised care is more effective than unorganised care and the breakdown of professional barriers within rehabilitation to facilitate the use of combined treatment techniques improves outcome It describes the contribution made by neural reorganisation and compensatory mechanisms to recovery of function focuses on the avoidance of secondary deficit and explores the physical cognitive affective and behavioural problems that may occur after neurological damage At a time when new medical technologies threaten to fragment the integrity of medical care at individual and societal levels it is crucial that all those involved in the management of chronic neurological disease have a working knowledge of the contents of this book Their perspective on clinical practice will then be truly integrated and holistic and their patients will benefit accordingly

Handbook of the Extracellular Matrix F. Raquel Maia, J. Miguel Oliveira, Rui L. Reis, 2024-07-16 This book comprises 6 sections covering the fundamentals of the extracellular matrix as well as the development and challenges of using biologically derived materials and its advanced biomedical applications. The first section is dedicated to the extracellular matrix while the other 5 sections are each dedicated to a particular type of material. This book reports the fundamentals of the extracellular matrix and its impact on the development of innovative materials, provides an overview of the advanced methodologies used to develop biologically derived materials and describes the challenges of the synthesis and processing of the different materials. Furthermore, it presents the biological activities, structural and physicochemical properties of such materials and the modification methods pursued to improve their inherent properties. The wide range of advanced applications are covered as well, including the combination with emerging technologies underlying tissue engineered scaffolding, drug delivery systems, 3D in vitro tissue and cancer models, 3D bioprinted models, bioinks and more. This reference work serves as a core reference for multidisciplinary students, undergraduates and Ph D students and a wide range of established researchers and professionals working in the medical field, e.g. orthopaedics, radiology, dentistry and cancer.
