process used to making teas and black tea grown in China but its production and manufacture had to other countries in East Asia. Several varieties grown in tea which differ substantially on the variety of substances used growing and the horticultural methods used in growing and time harvested. Although there has been no direct research on the possible health effects of consuming green tea, generally there is little evidence that drinking green tea has any effect on health. Green tea has been shown to be the best beverage after water. Traditional Chinese medicine has innumerable health benefits. Both cardiovascular and neurological diseases, diabetes, kidney disorders, kidney cancer, antioxidants in green tea fight them all. But the benefits do not know the right way to grow and find and use correctly to will not provide health benefits and will end up tasting bitter and gross. So remember that you understand and master the method of growing green tea. Read on to find out how to make green tea that will rejuvenate and improve your body. But first let me tell you a little bit about green tea. The practice of drinking green tea in China has been around for thousands of years. The Emperor of China in 2737 BC when a few tea tree leaves fell into his soup, boiled with rice. Later Chinese monks started drinking green tea for religious meditation. The health benefits of tea would fit in very well to Indian traditions to spread Buddhism and the tea miracle drink with them. Thereafter green tea gained popularity. Green tea, Camellia sinensis, and green tea leaves have to be dried before the tea pickers harvest the leaves from the apex. The leaves are then processed in a way that prevents too much oxidation. And this is the key to processing tea that makes green tea not oxidized. The green tea from China has many varieties, whereas the green tea from America has only one. However, both have the same health benefits. Green tea can be an antioxidant. The traditional method of processing green tea involves withering, though not always necessary. It has been found to be anti-irritation and cellulite reducing, reduces high cholesterol, green tea also reduces weight loss supplements, not only the metabolic resting rate and the release of energy in the NA determining brown fat, thermogenesis. Methyl supplementation with green tea reduces the health of the type 2 diabetes and prevent cardiovascular and neurological diseases including Alzheimer's. Green tea when consumed has good health benefits.
