Picture the Earth!

"Hi! I'm Jackson, the historian."

"And I'm Alana, the photographer. We're taking a tour through history, and we'd like you to come along. We're going to explore our nation's early years and our home state of Florida. We'd like to share our state's shining history. Get it? Shining? Florida is the Sunshine State! Okay, we promise that our tour will be better than our jokes!"

"Along the journey, you'll read about things that are happening right now in our 'Current Events' section. In 'American Character,' we'll introduce you to people who demonstrate great character traits (qualities). This week we talk about perseverance. In the 'Trades and Technology' section, you'll discover some cool tools and technology that have affected our lives in some amazing ways. In the 'Biography' section, you'll read fascinating life stories of people who have had an important impact on our world. Inside, you'll find the section that shows off my writing talent and Alana's photography genius. Be sure to check out the back page. That's our favorite part! We've included crossword puzzles, comics and other fun things to do. There's a lot to learn, so test yourself in the 'Think and Review' section to see if you remember everything."

"Right, Jackson. This is going to be so much fun! But before we get started, we have to start with the big picture—the big picture of Earth, that is! As you might know, the Earth is mostly made up of water. About 70 percent of Earth is covered with water. There are seven large landmasses, or continents. They are Asia, Australia, Africa, Antarctica, North America, South America and Europe. The world's five major oceans are the Pacific, Atlantic, Indian, Southern and Arctic. Did you know that until recently only four oceans were recognized by most geographers?"

"I sure did, Alana. And I know that geographers are people who study the Earth and its features. They use globes and maps to represent the Earth. Globes are three-dimensional scale models of the Earth."

Maps are flat, detailed representations of places on Earth. Each half of the world is known as a hemisphere. The imaginary line that runs west to east, or horizontally, around our Earth is the equator. It divides the Earth into northern and southern hemispheres. The imaginary line that runs north to south, or vertically, around the Earth is the prime meridian. It divides the Earth into western and eastern hemispheres."

"Great! Now that we know a little more about our world, let's get on with the tour!"

Connections

Help a Rat and Learn to Run the Country This Year!

Hey, kids! I'm Rev. I'm your online Studies Weekly friend and I need your help. You can help me get great stuff by earning points while you learn. Just scan the code or go to www.studiesweekly.com and click on my picture.

Have your family ever bought something that came with an owner's manual? Cars, TVs and other things have an owner's manual, a book on how to use them. Your social studies class is the "owner's manual" for the United States of America. You'll learn about history, geography, government by the people, and much more, so you can do a good job of running our country someday.

In America rats can't vote, so "you the people" govern (run) the country. Someday you will be in charge of this country, and you'll choose leaders and representatives by voting. Then you can tell the representatives you help elect how you think the country should be run. In fact, Studies Weekly kids are so smart, that many of you will someday be mayors, senators, governors—maybe even the president!

For now you have two jobs: Learn about the country and how it works, and earn points for me so I can get that great stuff I told you about. It's easy. Just scan or click and you're on your way!

United States Civil Society Marcella Ridlen Ray, Ray has written a book that should be read by anyone interested in the current debates about the general health of civil society in the United States American Journal of Sociology The formation maintenance and well being of American civil society is a topic of intense debate in the social sciences Until now this debate has lacked rigor with the term civil society commonly used interchangeably and imprecisely with other terms such as civic engagement Today's discourse also lacks methodological discipline and relies too heavily on narrowly selected evidence in support of a particular argument In this invaluable contribution to the debate Marcella Ridlen Ray supplies an empirical study based on a theoretical model of democratic civil society one that posits high levels of communication diversity autonomy mediation and voluntary association In Ray's account the emergent story of U.S. civil society is that of a dynamic institution not necessarily one that is linear in its progression It is a tale of flux resilience and stability over the long term that is consistent with subtexts on political equilibrium she notes in the work of early political analysts such as Aristotle Machiavelli Locke Burke and later Tocqueville Ray dispels the widely accepted myth that Americans are increasingly apathetic and withdrawn from common interests The evidence reveals a persistence of long standing public spiritedness despite the fact that individuals use wider discretion in deciding if and how to attach to community and despite a historical lack of enthusiasm for performing civic duties in lieu of more pleasurable leisure activity This public spiritedness continues to reflect embedded religious cultural values that disproportionately influence how and when people dedicate time and money to associational life U.S. civil society has grown more inclusive and democratic as Americans venture at growing rates across differences in perspective ideas beliefs and experience to form diverse networks of interest association and community No longer confined to an immediate or local area the social space of Americans now incorporates national international and cyber spatial dimensions Social connectedness is extensive due to the expansion of social space and the multiplication of weak social ties that transcend geographic and spatial boundaries Ray's theoretical model gives form and coherence to her massive compilation of quantitative and qualitative data She uses this to improve the visibility of civil society an institution essential to democracy itself This volume provides the basis for a systematic evaluation of a major American institution as well as a framework for comparison with other Western democracies Marcella Ridlen Ray is senior fellow School of Public Policy and adjunct professor in Sociology and Anthropology at George Mason University in Fairfax Virginia

Effectiveness of Time Investments in Education Jaap Scheerens,2013-08-15 This book analyzes the productivity and effectiveness of a variety of time investments in education It explores the methods used in education to optimize the time that students are exposed to learning content Such methods include expanding official school time optimizing time on task providing homework assignments and creating learning opportunities beyond lesson hours The book presents a review of earlier reviews and meta analyses secondary analyses of international data sets and new meta analyses concerning the effects of instruction time homework and extended learning beyond official school time It explores the concept of time as a condition to enhance student achievement and discusses methodological issues in separating genuine time effects from related facets of educational quality The book shows that the dependence of time effects on the quality of content choice and delivery raises critical questions for both researchers and policy planners It further shows that sophisticated research designs are required to properly assess time effects and that policy makers should be concerned about the bluntness of time as an instrument to enhance educational productivity Bookseller and Print Dealers Weekly ,1928
