Excerpt: A crossword is a word puzzle that normally takes the form of a square or rectangular grid of white and shaded squares. The goal is to fill the white squares with letters forming words or phrases by solving clues which lead to the answers. In languages that are written left to right, the answer words and phrases are placed in the grid from left to right and from top to bottom. The shaded squares are used to separate the words or phrases. Squares in which answers begin are usually numbered. The clues are then referred to by these numbers and a direction, for example 4 Across or 20 Down. At the end of the clue, the total number of letters is sometimes given, depending on the style of puzzle and country of publication. Some crosswords will also indicate the number of words in a given answer, should there be more than one. The horizontal and vertical lines of white cells into which answers are written are commonly called entries or answers. The clues are usually called just that or sometimes definitions. White cells are sometimes called lights and the shaded cells are sometimes called darks, blanks, blocks or just simply black squares or shaded squares. A white cell that is part of two entries, both Across and Down, is called checked, keyed or crossed. A white cell that is part of only one entry is called unchecked, unkeyed or uncrossed. The creating of crosswords is called cruciverbalism among its practitioners, who are referred to as cruciverbalists from the Latin for cross and word.
