

Walk Two Moons

By Sharon Creech

(Harper Trophy, 1994)

(Available in Canada, and UK, HarperCollins Publishers; Australia, HarperCollins)

Thirteen-year old Sal finds herself living in a small house in Euclid, Ohio, with her father, far from their Kentucky farm. Her mother has vanished, and Sal is heartbroken. She hates her father's new friend, Margaret Cadaver, and she misses her old life.

Sal becomes friends with Phoebe Winterbottom, a girl who lives next door to Margaret Cadaver. Strange notes begin to appear on Phoebe's doorstep—notes which upset Phoebe's mother. On a road trip to Idaho with her grandparents, Sal tells the story of Phoebe and her mother.

Gramps and Gram agree to drive Sal along the route her own mother took when she left suddenly for Idaho. In between episodes of Phoebe's story, Sal and her grandparents have many adventures. They almost get robbed, and Gram gets bitten by a snake. They visit the Badlands, Mount Rushmore, and Yellowstone National Park before arriving in Idaho where they rush to the hospital.

During the trip, Sal tells Gramps and Gram about her strange teacher, Mr. Birkway. He makes his students write in journals, portions of which he then reads to the class, always trying to keep the author's identities unknown. In school, Sal meets Mary Lou Finney and her cousin, Ben. She notices the difference between Phoebe's very proper household and Mary Lou's chaotic family life. Ben notices Sal, and he tries to kiss her. Sal's own family life remains confusing. Her father continues to visit Margaret Cadaver, but Sal discovers him crying and looking through old photo albums at pictures of her mother.

Suddenly, Phoebe's mother disappears. Sal is reminded of her own mother's disappearance, and she promises to help Phoebe find her mother. The two girls begin looking for clues. A strange young man whom Phoebe refers to as "the lunatic" is their prime suspect. They try to enlist the help of the police, who don't take Mrs. Winterbottom's disappearance seriously. Finally, Sal and Phoebe take a trip and discover something shocking.

Walk Two Moons is a story about mothers and daughters. It explores the importance of never pre-judging a person, and it emphasizes compassion. By the end of the story, Sal learns several important truths, the most important of which is that you really can't understand a person completely—not even your own mother—until you walk two moons in her moccasins.
