Dear Hillary Clinton,

As First Lady, Senator, Secretary of State, and in your recent work with the Clinton Global Initiative, you have advocated for the cause of women's empowerment around the world. Today we write to ask you to also join us in an important women's empowerment initiative here at home. It involves an area to which you have a special connection and thus presents you, specifically, with an important responsibility to make a direct difference in the lives of hundreds of thousands of American women and an indirect difference in millions more.

The Walmart Corporation is the largest employer in the United States, employing about one in every hundred Americans. Unfortunately, America's largest employer sets a horrible example with its miserly wage policy. Walmart pays hundreds of thousands of their workers less per hour, adjusted for inflation, than minimum wage workers made 46 years ago. With rising housing, health and transportation costs, Walmart workers cannot make ends meet on less than $10, $9 or even, for some, $8 an hour. The cashiers and hourly sales associates at the White Plains Walmart close to your house, for example, live in a city with a living wage of -- as estimated by the MIT Living Wage Calculator -- $13.05, but most hourly Walmart workers are paid thousands of dollars per year below that standard. It's no surprise that one Walmart manager even admitted this disconnect between Walmart pay and fair pay by placing a bin out last holiday season to solicit donations from customers for his own needy workers.

Seventy percent of the positions subject to Walmart's hourly poverty wage regime are held by women. Most of these women are managed by men, who -- despite making up a minority of the company's employees -- make up a majority of Walmart's managers and officials. Irregular schedules and a miserly sick day policy make Walmart a difficult place for mothers to work. Take as an example one 33-year-old mother of two featured on ABC News a few years ago: she had to leave her daughter at home with a 103-degree fever because she was worried about her three sick day "demerits" issued by her Walmart manager. Worse over, Walmart's poverty wage regime drives down the wages and benefits of neighboring stores, again disproportionately hurting women, who make up the majority of the low-wage workforce in America.

Walmart could end this assault on their female "associates" by paying all their workers at least $10.92, which is the inflation-adjusted wage that the lowest paid Walmart workers -- under their
