Description

The Walther P99 is a short-reset opened lock reset forward reset automatic pistol that uses a modified Browning case lock system adapted from the 1911 frame pistol. The P99 has a gas blowback action and pressure blow and short slide assembly. It uses a forward slide as opposed to an internal hammer with a reset action by that pressure. The use of the slide when the gun is locked as well as a locked hammer indicator on the right side of the slide. Ergonomics were a key factor in the design of the P99, and as a result, three inter-compatible grip techniques are included to accommodate various hand shapes and sizes.
