Proceedings of the Marine Safety & Security Council ,2016 How Global Migration Changes the Workforce Diversity Equation Anthony Forsyth,Hina Sheikh,Francesca Sperotti,2015-06-18 This volume explores some of the ways that a dialogue between diversity researchers and migration researchers can deepen the understanding of both It moves across economics sociology political science labour relations and legal studies demonstrating that the value of this dialogue cuts across disciplines The book particularly underlines the challenges faced in host societies including exclusion to the point of hyper precarity anti migrant attitudes and the widespread organizationa

Implementing the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora through national fisheries legal frameworks

Nakamura, J.N. and Kuemlangan, B.,2020-11-11 An increasing number of commercially exploited and managed aquatic species has been listed in the Appendices to the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora CITES triggering the attention from the fisheries sector of States on how listing would impact on the management of the relevant fisheries CITES regulates international trade in certain aquatic species including those which are and can be commercially exploited and which are being managed by the fisheries sector The fisheries sector legal frameworks will have to recognize and enable the various requirements provided for in CITES including the making of non detriment findings and ensuring that there is a designated management authority and scientific authority to take certain decisions in respect of listed commercially exploited and managed aquatic species This sourcebook provides clarifications on the relationship of CITES with the fisheries sector and provides guidance on how national fisheries legal frameworks can optimize the implementation of CITES The realisation of this sourcebook in 2020 designated as a super year for nature and biodiversity represents a timely and useful contribution to fisheries management by i raising awareness of CITES ii enhancing comprehension of the CITES regime and its relationship with the fisheries sector and iii where a deliberate decision is made by a country to implement CITES through its national fisheries legal frameworks providing guidance as to what do it and how to do it Monthly Catalogue, United States Public Documents ,1985-07

Implementing the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES) through national fisheries legal frameworks

Nakamura, J.N., Kuemlangan, B.,2023-10-24 In recent years an increasing number of commercially exploited and managed aquatic species including sharks and rays have been listed in the Appendices to the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora CITES The listing of some species in CITES Appendix II has necessitated attention from the fisheries sector of States on how listing would impact on the management of the relevant fisheries This sourcebook and the research process involved in its development highlighted the opportunity to implement CITES through national fisheries legal frameworks Indeed in certain cases doing so can prove to be vital in giving practical effect to CITES while simultaneously enhancing fisheries management regimes and ensuring that all activities along the fisheries value chain especially the international trade in CITES listed aquatic species are legal traceable and sustainable The study recognizes that communities operating within the CITES regime and in the fisheries sectors have their own particular areas of work However they should cooperate and coordinate their work where they share the common high level objectives of ensuring responsible legal and sustainable utilization of resources including species biodiversity and ecosystems and implementing the relevant Sustainable Development Goals This sourcebook was first published in 2020 designated as a super year for nature and biodiversity The second edition of this sourcebook was developed to take into account and reflect the outcomes of the 19th meeting of the Conference of the Parties to CITES in 2022 The sourcebook is a timely and useful contribution to fisheries management as it seeks to provide support in i raising awareness of CITES ii enhancing comprehension of the CITES regime and its relationship with the fisheries sector and iii where a deliberate decision is made by a country to implement CITES through its national fisheries legal frameworks providing guidance on what to do and how to do it
