Energy in the United States

Energy is fundamental to life on Earth. We depend on energy for nearly everything. It takes energy to light, cool, and heat our homes. It also takes energy to fuel our vehicles, grow our food, and power our machinery and technology.

Energy demands are increasing. At the same time, there is growing concern about the negative effects of climate change on the environment and people. As a result, there is increased interest in exploring ways to harness energy from renewable, locally available resources.

Nonrenewable Energy Sources
