Weep In Silence:

Van Diemen's Land Murray Johnson, Ian McFarlane, 2015-03-01 The history of Aborigines in Van Diemen's Land is long. The first Tasmanians lived in isolation for as many as 300 generations after the flooding of Bass Strait. Their struggle against almost insurmountable odds is one worthy of respect and admiration, not to mention serious attention. This broad-ranging book is a comprehensive and critical account of that epic survival up to the present day. Starting from antiquity, the book examines the devastating arrival of Europeans and subsequent colonisation, warfare and exile. It emphasises the regionalism and separateness, a consistent feature of Aboriginal life since time immemorial that has led to the distinct identities we see in the present, including the unique place of the islanders of Bass Strait. Carefully researched using the findings of archaeologists and extensive documentary evidence, some only recently uncovered, this important book fills a long time gap in Tasmanian history.

Weep in Silence Francesca Dornan, 2008 A compelling and heart-felt true story containing actual facts about life-long abuse. Provided by publisher.

Fantastic Dreaming Jane Lydon, 2009-04-16 Fantastic Dreaming explores how whites have measured Australian Aboriginal people through their material culture and domestic practices, aspects of culture intimately linked to Enlightenment notions of progress and social institutions such as marriage and property. Archaeological investigation reveals that the Moravian missionaries attempted to civilize the Wergaia-speaking people of northwestern Victoria, centered on spatial practices, housing and the consumption of material goods. After the mission closed in 1904, white observers saw the camp settlements that formed nearby as evidence of Aboriginal incapacity and immorality, rather than as symptoms of exclusion and poverty. Conceptions of transformation as acculturation survived in assimilation policies that envisioned Aboriginal people becoming the same as whites through living in European housing. These ideas persist in archaeological analysis that insists on Aboriginality as otherness and difference and equates objects with identity. However, Wergaia tradition was place-based and often invisibly. Indigenous people maintained traditional relationships to kin and country, resisting white authority through strategies of evasion and mobility. This study examines the complex role of material culture and spatial politics in shaping colonial identities and offers a critique of essentialism in archaeological interpretation.

Concern for Creation Tim Matton-Johnson, 2025-07-01 This book is about participating in a conversation seeking to develop a holistic spirituality and theology. At its heart is the Aboriginal conviction that everything is connected. It contains a personal biographical story to encourage others to enter its whole of Creation Theology. It is about more than just us humans. In the writing of theology, it is always important to address its applicability to the contemporary context. In our time, that context is climate change and all the complex issues surrounding the warming of our planet. This book begins with a summary of the interconnected issues that we now face. It also looks at some proposed strategies for mitigating the impacts of climate change. There is an awareness that climate change arises from human rather than natural activity. The book then turns to a Tasmanian Aboriginal theology that emerges out of colonial invasion. Themes from this theology are then followed through from the perspective of European philosophy science and Christian theology The last section of the book contains some reflection on what has come before It seeks to discover hope for our children in a context where hope seems in short supply

Writing Never Arrives Naked Penny van Toorn, Penelope Van Toorn, 2006 In Writing Never Arrives Naked Penny van Toorn reveals the resourceful and often poignant ways that Indigenous Australians involved themselves in the colonisers paper culture The first Aboriginal readers were children stolen from the clans around Sydney Harbour The first Aboriginal author was Bennelong a stolen adult From the early years of colonisation Aboriginal people used written texts to negotiate a changing world to challenge their oppressors protect country and kin and occasionally for economic gain Van Toorn argues that Aboriginal people were curious about books and papers and in time began to integrate letters of the alphabet into their graphic traditions During the 19th and 20th centuries Aboriginal people played key roles in translating the Bible and made their political views known in community and regional newspapers They also sent numerous letters and petitions to political figures including Queen Victoria

BOOK JACKET Calling the shots Jane Lydon, 2014-04-14 Historically photographs of Indigenous Australians were produced in unequal and exploitative circumstances Today however such images represent a rich cultural heritage for descendants who see them in distinctive and positive ways Calling the shots brings together researchers who are using this rich archive to explore Aboriginal history to identify relatives and to reclaim culture It reverses the colonial gaze to focus on the interactions between photographer and Indigenous people and the living meanings the photos have today The result is a fresh perspective on Australia's past and on present day Indigenous identities Innovative in three ways Calling the shots incorporates Indigenous perspectives on the photographic process and especially the meaning of the photographic archive It also explores the history of photography in each colony thus providing a rich and varied series of historical social landscapes Lastly it examines the active role played by Indigenous people in photography as a process of encounter and exchange Contributors include Julie Gough Jane Lydon Sari Braithwaite Shauna Bostock Smith Lawrence Bamblett Michael Aird Karen Hughes and Auntie Ellen Trevorrow Donna Oxenham Laurie Baymarrwangga and Bentley James

The First Wave Gillian Dooley, Danielle Clode, 2019-06-20 The European maritime explorers who first visited the bays and beaches of Australia brought with them diverse assumptions about the inhabitants of the country most of them based on sketchy or non-existent knowledge contemporary theories like the idea of the noble savage and an automatic belief in the superiority of European civilisation Mutual misunderstanding was almost universal whether it resulted in violence or apparently friendly transactions Written for a general audience The First Wave brings together a variety of contributions from thought provoking writers including both original research and creative work Our contributors explore the dynamics of these early encounters from Indigenous cosmological perspectives and European history of ideas from representations in art and literature to the role of animals food and fire in mediating first contact encounters and Indigenous agency in exploration and shipwrecks The First Wave includes poetry by Yankunytjatjara Aboriginal poet Ali Cobby
