Tonal Consciousness and the Medieval West Fiona McAlpine, 2008. Tonal consciousness in the sense of a clear intuition about which note or chord a piece of music will finish on is as much a part of our everyday experience of music as it is of contemporary music theory. This book asks to what extent such tonal consciousness might have operated in the minds of musicians of the Middle Ages given the different tone world found in the modes of Gregorian chant, in troubadour and trouvère music, in Minnesang, and in the early polyphony based upon chant. The author's approach is analytical, focusing on modality and balancing up-to-date concepts and methods of music analysis with those insights into their own compositional needs and processes that the people of the Middle Ages provided themselves through their writings about music. The book examines a range of both music sources and theoretical sources from the ninth to the thirteenth centuries. This is a ground-breaking contribution both to the study of medieval music and to music analysis.
