Annelida Basal Groups and Pleistoannelida, Sedentaria I Günter Purschke, Markus Böggemann, Andreas Schmidt-Rhaesa, Wilfried Westheide, 2019-03-18 This book is the first in a series of 4 volumes in the Handbook of Zoology series about morphology anatomy reproduction development ecology phylogeny and systematics of Annelida This first volume covers members of the so called basal radiation and the first part of Sedentaria It is supplemented by chapters on the history of annelid research their fossil record and an introduction to the phylogeny of annelids and their position in the tree of life In the latter chapter the history of their systematic is reviewed giving an almost complete picture of systematic scientific progress especially in the past years which changed our view on annelid phylogeny dramatically The most basal annelids lately united as Palaeoannelida represent two families of aberrant polychaetes formerly often suggested to be highly derived which now give us a fresh look on how the ancestral annelid may have looked like These lack certain key characters such as nuchal organs and possess rather simple nervous systems which now likely represent primitive character states In this basal radiation the first taxon of apparently unsegmented and achaetigerous animals is positioned the Sipuncula Most likely another group of platyhelminth like and unsegmented and even chaeta less annelids Lobatocerebridae falls into this basal radiation The section of Sedentaria starts with Orbiniida a taxon characterized by elongated thread like worms which do not have anterior appendages like palps and comprises several families representing members of the Meiofauna These minute worms often inhabiting the interstitial spaces in marine sands are suggested to have evolved by progenesis The second higher taxon is represented by Cirratuliformia comprising nine families of typical sedentary polychaetes each of which showing a remarkable variation of the annelid body plan Members of this taxon usually exhibit many annelid characters but certain also lack the most typical prostomial appendages the palps from the Japanese mainland the Allies would secure their final staging base for the invasion of Japan In the largest amphibious assault of the Pacific War soldiers and Marines would grind through 82 days of combat At the same time U S and Allied ships would suffer their worst losses of the war from waves of Japanese kamikazes But with this important victory the Allies path to Japan was finally open

China at War Hans van de Ven, 2018-02-12 China's mid twentieth century wars pose extraordinary interpretive challenges The issue is not just that the Chinese fought for such a long time from the Marco Polo Bridge Incident of July 1937 until the close of the Korean War in 1953 across such vast territory As Hans van de Ven explains the greatest puzzles lie in understanding China's simultaneous external and internal wars Much is at stake politically in how this story is told Today in its official history and public commemorations the People's Republic asserts Chinese unity against Japan during World War II But this overwrites the era's stark divisions between Communists and Nationalists increasingly erasing the civil war from memory Van de Ven argues that the war with Japan the civil war and its aftermath were in fact of a piece a singular process of conflict and political change Reintegrating the Communist uprising with the Sino Japanese War he shows how the Communists took advantage of wartime to increase their appeal how fissures between the Nationalists and Communists affected anti Japanese resistance and how the fractious coalition fostered conditions for revolution In the process the Chinese invented an influential paradigm of war wherein the Clausewitzian model of total war between well defined interstate enemies gave way to murky campaigns of national liberation involving diverse domestic and outside belligerents This history disappears when the realities of China s mid century conflicts are stripped from public view China at War recovers them
