Esco, 2020-05-21 The desire to improve muscle function and prevent overuse injuries from exercise and throughout training has led to the development of various methods to aid recovery and track readiness to perform Ergogenic aids such as cold water immersion massage and dynamic recovery procedures may have positive effects but the results of the related research remain equivocal Furthermore novel interventions in this scenario like compression garments ice vests and photobiomodulation therapy are promising but need more evidence based data to support their effectiveness Similarly to properly monitor individual physical conditioning there is a growing interest toward unobtrusive measures to accurately represent physiological status during and or after exercise There are several techniques being used such as subjective ratings of well being heart rate monitoring hormonal and hematological profile assessments However more sensitive indexes like heart rate variability and muscle activation voluntary and or involuntary are arising as attractive alternatives that may delineate physical conditioning status and readiness to perform more precisely than the aforementioned measures The purpose of this Research Topic is to critically evaluate and summarize recent data from observational and intervention studies related to non invasive methods designed to promote recovery and objectively monitor training status Their association to physical performance and physiological recovery in athletes during training and competition is a major focus of this Topic

Brazilian Elites and their Philanthropy Jessica Sklair,2021-11-04 This book explores the philanthropy of Brazilian elites during a key period in recent Brazilian history from Workers Party president Lula s last term in office through to the election of far right president Jair Bolsonaro Against this backdrop of political upheaval the book asks what philanthropy can reveal about the role of corporate and wealth elites in upholding the structures of socioeconomic inequality that continue to define Brazilian society The book argues that around the world the private sector s growing engagement in international development has led to the emergence of a global philanthropic project centred on practices of philanthrocapitalism and social finance which ultimately seeks to legitimise global capitalism and the elite interests it serves Drawing on an in depth and wide ranging ethnographic study among philanthropists and their advisors in over 30 Brazilian foundations and intermediary organisations the book combines a structural critique of the capitalist ideologies underlying philanthropic practice with a robust exploration into the ways in which wealthy Brazilians appropriate philanthropy directly to legitimise elite reproduction and the accumulation of wealth Researchers across Latin American studies development studies and the anthropology of development will find this book a timely contribution to the under researched areas of elite studies and the study of philanthropy
