Session of the ... Congress of the United States United States. Office of the Comptroller of the Currency,1980 Concrete Structures for Oil and Gas Fields in Hostile Marine Environments fib Fédération internationale du béton,2008-12-01 Concrete offshore structures have been successfully delivered to the international oil and gas industry for more than 35 years Some 50 major concrete platforms of different shapes and sizes supporting large production and storage facilities are currently operating in hostile marine environments worldwide and have excellent service records After some years with little development activity today there is a renewed interest in robust structures for the Arctic environment for Liquefied Natural Gas LNG terminals and for special floating barges and vessels Currently concrete solutions are being considered for projects north and east of Russia north of Norway and offshore Newfoundland among others Concrete is also in increasing demand in built up coastal areas for a variety of purposes such as harbour works tunnels and bridges cargo terminals parking garages and sea front housing developments where durability and robustness are essential The mandate of fib Task Group 1 5 was to gather the experience and know how pertinent to the development design and execution of offshore concrete structures and to elaborate on the applicability of concrete structures for the Arctic environments The findings of the Task Group are presented in fib Bulletin 50 The report is based on experience gained from the design execution and performance of a number of offshore concrete structures around the world and in particular in the North Sea Ongoing inspections have shown excellent durability and structural performance even in structures that have exceeded their design lives in conditions often characterized by extreme wave loads freezing conditions hurricane force winds and seismic actions This forms the background for discussing the applicability of concrete structures for the Arctic regions Although to a large extent dedicated to oil and gas related structures the report is also relevant to other marine applications where the same design principles material selection criteria and construction methods apply fib Bulletin 50 is not in itself a code nor is it a textbook Rather extensive reference is made to proven and readily available design codes and construction guides as well as relevant papers and proceedings and other fib publications

ECKM2007-Proceedings of the 8th European Conference on Knowledge Management Dan Remenyi,2007 Business Intelligence Techniques Murugan Anandarajan,Asokan Anandarajan,Cadambi A. Srinivasan,2004 Modern businesses generate huge volumes of accounting data on a daily basis The recent advancements in information technology have given organizations the ability to capture and store these data in an efficient and effective manner However there is a widening gap between this data storage and usage of the data Business intelligence techniques can help an organization obtain and process relevant accounting data quickly and cost efficiently Such techniques include query and reporting tools online analytical processing OLAP statistical analysis text mining data mining and visualization Business Intelligence Techniques is a compilation of chapters written by experts in the various areas While these chapters stand of their own taken together they provide a comprehensive overview of how to exploit accounting data in the business environment Planning and design handbook on precast building structures FIB - Féd. Int. du Béton,2014 In 1994 fib Commission 6 Prefabrication edited a successful Planning and Design Handbook that ran to approximately 45 000 copies and was published in Spanish and German Nearly 20 years later Bulletin 74 brings that first publication up to date It offers a synthesis of the latest structural design knowledge about precast building structures against the background of 21st century technological innovations in materials production and construction With it we hope to help architects and engineers achieve a full understanding of precast concrete building structures the possibilities they offer and their specific design philosophy It was principally written for non seismic structures The handbook contains eleven chapters each dealing with a specific aspect of precast building structures The first chapter of the handbook highlights best practice opportunities that will enable architects design engineers and contractors to work together towards finding efficient solutions which is something unique to precast concrete buildings The second chapter offers basic design recommendations that take into account the possibilities restrictions and advantages of precast concrete along with its detailing manufacture transport erection and serviceability stages Chapter three describes the precast solutions for the most common types of buildings such as offices sports stadiums residential buildings hotels industrial warehouses and car parks Different application possibilities are explored to teach us which types of precast units are commonly used in all those situations Chapter four covers the basic design principles and systems related to stability Precast concrete structures should be designed according to a specific stability concept unlike cast in situ structures Chapter five discusses structural connections Chapters six to nine address the four most commonly used systems or subsystems of precast concrete in buildings namely portal and skeletal structures wall frame structures floor and roof structures and architectural concrete facades In chapter ten the design and detailing of a number of specific construction details in precast elements are discussed for example supports corbels openings and cutouts in the units special features related to the detailing of the reinforcement and so forth Chapter eleven gives guidelines for the fire design of precast concrete structures The handbook concludes with a list of references to good literature on precast concrete construction

Concrete Structure Management - Guide to Ownership and Good Practice fib Fédération internationale du béton, 2008-01-01 Construction projects are undertaken to meet a variety of business service and aspirational objectives and needs The success of a building or an element of infrastructure depends on how well it meets the owner's needs and interests or those of the users Recent changes in owner attitudes to construction are reflected in an increasing interest in through life costs i.e. not only the capital costs of construction but also the operational costs associated with a structure's functional performance for a defined life span The owner can greatly improve the likelihood of achieving the value they seek from the facility by being intimately and effectively involved in the definition of performance requirements at the start of the construction procurement process The objective of fib Bulletin 44 is to provide guidance to owners of concrete structures on the management of their concrete structures buildings and infrastructure as part of their business goals or the service objectives of their organization best practice in the management of concrete structures their responsibilities with respect to the management of their concrete structures the wider context and issues of service life design information and direction needed by the supporting professional team of architects engineers specifiers contractors and others This Guide also provides background information on topics such as deterioration processes and technical procedures used for the management of concrete structures including reference to international standards for the protection and repair of concrete structures These activities are illustrated by application examples case histories and by a section addressing frequently asked questions A brief review is made of some potential future developments
