The Evolution of Paleolithic Technologies Steven L. Kuhn, 2020-09-14 The Evolution of Paleolithic Technologies provides a novel perspective on long term trajectories of evolutionary change in Paleolithic tools and tool makers Members of the human lineage have been producing stone tools for more than 3 million years These artefacts provide key evidence for important evolutionary developments in hominin behaviour and cognition Avoiding conventional approaches based on progressive stages of development this book instead examines global trends in six separate dimensions of technological behaviour between 2.6 million and 10 000 years ago Combining these independent trends results in both a broader and a more finely punctuated perspective on key intervals of change in hominin behaviour To draw this picture together the concluding section explores behavioural cognitive and demographic implications of developments in material culture and technological procedures at seven key intervals during the Pleistocene Researchers interested in Paleolithic archaeology will find this book invaluable It will also be of interest to archaeologists researching stone tool technology and to students of human evolution and behavioural change in prehistory

The Emergence of Pressure Blade Making Pierre M. Desrosiers, 2012-03-13 Human development is a long and steady process that began with stone tool making. Because of this skill humans were able to adapt to climate changes discover new territories and invent new technologies. Pressure knapping is the common term for one method of creating stone tools where a larger device or blade specifically made for this purpose is used to press out the stone tool. Pressure knapping was invented in different locations and at different points in time representing the adoption of the Neolithic way of life in the Old world. Recent research on pressure knapping has led for the first time to a global thesis on this technique. The contributors to this seminal work combine research findings on pressure knapping from different cultures around the globe to develop a cohesive theory. This contribution to this volume represents a significant development to research on pressure knapping as well as the field of lithic studies in general. This work will be an important reference for anyone studying the Paleolithic Mesolithic and Neolithic periods lithic studies technologies and more generally cultural transmission.
