Simple Present and Present Continuous

Use the simple present to talk about habits and things that are generally true.	I normally don't eat eggs for breakfast. Fresh vegetables are always available at the market.
Use the present continuous to talk about actions and events that are happening now.	My father is preparing a special dish for tonight's dinner, and I am watching and learning how to make it.
To form questions, use do/does with the simple present and are/is with the present continuous.	Do you follow a special diet? Is she celebrating her birthday tonight?

Grammar: Simple Present and Present Continuous

In English, we use different verb forms to show that something generally happens in the present or that it is happening at the moment of speaking. The simple present can describe habits (I always drink tea in the morning.) and show that something is generally true (The Netherlands produces tomatoes.), while the present continuous shows us that something is happening now (I'm having coffee this morning.).

Grammar

- Elicit examples of general and current actions. For example, I usually drink water. Today, I'm drinking coffee.
- Elicit the differences between simple present and present continuous. Then go over the information in the chart.
- Have students complete the exercise with a partner.
- Review answers as a class. Ask students to identify the simple present and present continuous verbs.
- Have students complete the exercise individually.
- Review answers and clarify any doubts as a class. Have students do the Grammar Practice exercise.

Grammar Practice: Simple Present and Present Continuous

Have students write four sentences on separate pieces of paper: some describing a morning routine (My mom usually gets up at 6:00.) and some describing what someone is doing at that moment (My friend is driving to school.). Have students mix up the sentences. Their partner must sort them into general and current actions.

- Elicit a list of breakfast and lunch foods. Use the Word Bank as needed.
- Have students do the exercise in pairs.
- Go over the Word Focus box on page 4. Then call on a few students to tell the class what their partner usually eats for breakfast or lunch, and what someone they know is doing at that moment. Correct any omission of the third person singular -s in the simple present.
- Go over the verb phrases in the box.
- Elicit the questions students need to ask and write the prompts on the board: Do you usually...? Do you ever...? Are you (verb) + ing right now?
- Have students move around the room and ask different classmates three questions each.
- Ask a few students to tell the class about one of the people they talked to.
