Environmental Transformations Mark Whitehead, 2014-04-16 From the depths of the oceans to the highest reaches of the atmosphere the human impact on the environment is significant and undeniable These forms of global and local environmental change collectively appear to signal the arrival of a new geological epoch the Anthropocene This is a geological era defined not by natural environmental fluctuations or meteorite impacts but by collective actions of humanity Environmental Transformations offers a concise and accessible introduction to the human practices and systems that sustain the Anthropocene It combines accounts of the carbon cycle global heat balances entropy hydrology forest ecology and pedology with theories of demography war industrial capitalism urban development state theory and behavioural psychology This book charts the particular role of geography and geographers in studying environmental change and its human drivers It provides a review of critical theories that can help to uncover the socio economic and political factors that influence environmental change It also explores key issues in contemporary environmental studies such as resource use water scarcity climate change industrial pollution and deforestation These issues are mapped through a series of geographical case studies to illustrate the particular value of geographical notions of space place and scale in uncovering the complex nature of environmental change in different socio economic political and cultural contexts Finally the book considers the different ways in which nations communities and individuals around the world are adapting to environmental change in the twenty first century Particular attention is given throughout to the uneven geographical opportunities that different communities have to adapt to environmental change and to the questions of social justice this situation raises This book encourages students to engage in the scientific uncertainties that surround the study of environmental change while also discussing both pessimistic and more optimistic views on the ability of humanity to address the environmental challenges of our current era Africare Penelope Campbell,2017-07-05 Africare is a US based non profit organization specializing in development aid for Africa It is also the oldest and largest African American led organization in the development field Since its founding in 1970 Africare has delivered more than 710 million in assistance through over 2 500 projects to thirty six African countries The organization employs over 1 000 people largely indigenous to the countries affected This is a study in leadership and competing African and American black interests Africare has sought to become the leading voice speaking on Africa within the US a goal more difficult to attain than becoming the premier NGO in Africa Sources of opinion and channels of expression about American policy in Africa are fragmented They do not have name recognition or influential sponsors There is poor coverage of African affairs in the US except for key often tragic events Africare has a heritage and has filled a niche in American society Penelope Campbell argues that unless the organization reclaims these unique assets it may lose the distinctiveness enabling its survival The challenge for Africare is spreading its story and message The author raises disturbing fundamental issues Has foreign aid become such an industry that the patient is not allowed to get well As the military cannot afford peace it seems the world cannot afford the cessation of poverty Campbell argues that success in Africa has been elusive not because of the failures of development organizations but the magnitude of the issues involved The author presents a convincing case for aid to Africa the pitfalls involved and for Africare s potential as a leader in meeting the continent s needs Geospatial Technologies for Land Degradation Assessment and Management R. S. Dwivedi,2018-10-17 The constant growth of the world s population and the decline of the availability of land and soil resources are global concerns for food security Other concerns are the decrease in productivity and delivery of essential ecosystems services because of the decline of soil quality and health by a range of degradation processes Key soil properties like soil bulk density organic carbon concentration plant available water capacity infiltration rate air porosity at field moisture capacity and nutrient reserves are crucial properties for soil functionality which refers to the capacity of soil to perform numerous functions These functions are difficult to measure directly and are estimated through indices of soil quality and soil health Soil degradation its extent and severity can also be estimated by assessing indices of soil quality and health Geospatial Technology for Land Degradation Assessment and Management uses satellite imagery and remote sensing technologies to measure landscape parameters and terrain attributes Remote sensing and geospatial technologies are important tools in assessing the extent and the severity of land and soil degradation their temporal changes and geospatial distribution in a timely and cost effective manner The knowledge presented in the book by Dr R S Dwivedi shows how remote sensing data can be utilized for inventorying assessing and monitoring affected ecosystems and how this information can be integrated in the models of different local settings Through many land degradations studies land managers researchers and policymakers will find practical applications of geospatial technologies and future challenges The information presented is also relevant to advancing the Sustainable Development Goals of the United Nations towards global food security
