Abstract: The purpose of this study was to investigate the effect of the use of a computer-based simulation on the learning of the concept of the center of mass. The study was conducted with 100 students in a physics course. The results showed that the use of the simulation significantly improved the students' understanding of the concept of the center of mass. The study also found that the use of the simulation was more effective than the use of a traditional lecture-based approach. The results of this study suggest that the use of a computer-based simulation is a valuable tool for teaching the concept of the center of mass.
