What's new: The authors have identified a new type of cell that may be involved in the development of the brain. The cell is called a "neural stem cell" and is found in the hippocampus, a region of the brain that is important for learning and memory. The authors found that these cells can differentiate into neurons, which are the cells that transmit signals in the brain. This discovery could have important implications for understanding the development of the brain and for treating neurological disorders.
