Integrated Management of Technical Documentation Jirka Hoppe,2012-12-06 Writing documentation is an integral part of any technical product development A significant amount of time is spent describing the product functionality giving insights into technical details providing maintenance instructions specifying marketing information writing user manuals etc As the creation of such documentation is generally a source of higher production costs many large companies are realising the need to increase the efficiency of documentation handling Simple documents consisting of only a few pages can be developed on simple systems Basic components of such systems are an editor handling text and graphics file storage and a printer Such configurations however are not sufficient to handle professional documentation as produced by larger companies Detailed studies of technical documentation requirements have revealed that in particular the following functionality is not usually provided by such simple documentation systems Technical documentation is often very large documents having hundreds or even thousands of pages are not exceptional Due to size and complexity technical documentation is developed most often by a team of authors A system for technical documentation has to provide functionality supporting the organisation of a group of authors Technical documentation usually consists of many different documents combined into one large documentation for a particular product The optimum organisation of the storage and retrieval of documents is crucial for the performance and acceptability of the system The functionality offered by normal file systems is not adequate to organise complex systems Database Integrity: Challenges and Solutions Doorn, Jorge

Paton,M.Howard Williams,2012-12-06 This book is the proceedings of a workshop held at Heriot Watt University in Edinburgh in August 1993 The central theme of the workshop was rules in database systems and the papers presented covered a range of different aspects of database rule systems These aspects are reflected in the sessions of the workshop which are the same as the sections in this proceedings Active Databases Architectures Incorporating Temporal Rules Rules and Transactions Analysis and Debugging of Active Rules Integrating Graphs Objects with Deduction Integrating Deductive and Active Rules Integrity Constraints Deductive Databases The incorporation of rules into database systems is an important area of research as it is a major component in the integration of behavioural information with the structural data with which commercial databases have traditionally been associated This integration of the behavioural aspects of an application with the data to which it applies in database systems leads to more straightforward application development and more efficient processing of data Many novel applications seem to need database systems in which structural and behavioural information are fully integrated Rules are only one means of expressing behavioural information but it is clear that different types of rule can be used to capture directly different properties of an application which are cumbersome to support using conventional database architectures In recent years there has been a surge of research activity focusing upon active database systems and this volume opens with a collection of papers devoted specifically to this topic Altova® DatabaseSpy 2010 User & Reference Manual , Altova® DatabaseSpy 2009 User & Reference Manual ,
