Handbook of Classroom Management Carolyn M. Evertson, Carol S. Weinstein, 2013-10-31 Classroom management is a topic of enduring concern for teachers administrators and the public It consistently ranks as the first or second most serious educational problem in the eyes of the general public and beginning teachers consistently rank it as their most pressing concern during their early teaching years Management problems continue to be a major cause of teacher burnout and job dissatisfaction Strangely despite this enduring concern on the part of educators and the public few researchers have chosen to focus on classroom management or to identify themselves with this critical field The Handbook of Classroom Management has four primary goals 1 to clarify the term classroom management 2 to demonstrate to scholars and practitioners that there is a distinct body of knowledge that directly addresses teachers managerial tasks 3 to bring together disparate lines of research and encourage conversations across different areas of inquiry and 4 to promote a vigorous agenda for future research in this area To this end 47 chapters have been organized into 10 sections each chapter written by a recognized expert in that area Cutting across the sections and chapters are the following themes First positive teacher student relationships are seen as the very core of effective classroom management Second classroom management is viewed as a social and moral curriculum Third external reward and punishment strategies are not seen as optimal for promoting academic and social emotional growth and self regulated behavior Fourth to create orderly productive environments teachers must take into account student characteristics such as age developmental level race ethnicity cultural background socioeconomic status and ableness Like other research handbooks the Handbook of Classroom Management provides an indispensable reference volume for scholars teacher educators in service practitioners and the academic libraries serving these audiences It is also appropriate for graduate courses wholly or partly devoted to the study of classroom management

Reflectivity and Cultivating Student Learning Edward G. Pultorak, 2014-07-03 Many educator preparation programs have a teacher reflection component and or model

however the current available literature provides little information regarding reflection's impact on teacher performance and student learning. This text will be useful for teacher education programs, graduate programs in education and professional development for educators. The goal of this book is to substantiate the knowledge, skills and dispositions that have been used to establish teacher reflectivity as a foundation of teacher education and to advance the acquisition, applications and appreciation of teacher reflectivity as a critical aspect of professional growth and development. Pultorak and his contributors enrich the literature and provide greater clarity regarding reflectivity's impact on student learning in our global society. Reshaping Universal Preschool Lucinda G. Heimer, Ann Elizabeth Ramminger, 2020-01-17 Given the diverse auspices and leadership in early education in the U.S., Universal Preschool will only happen through collaboration. This book plans a different approach to the Universal Preschool dilemma by using dynamic and specific lenses to sift through the layers of power and policy that are the foundation of any effort. Self-directed Learning Oriented Assessments in the Asia-Pacific Magdalena Mo Ching Mok, 2012-10-09 The Asia Pacific region needs to maximize the benefits of education to enable it to compete in an economic future dominated by innovation in which assessing student progress must be an empowering rather than delimiting factor. This detailed exposition of the theoretical basis and application tools of self-directed learning oriented assessment (SLOA) reflects the very latest research championed by the Assessment Research Centre at The Hong Kong Institute of Education. Featuring a range of relevant case studies, it explores the varied theoretical issues related to SLOA and offers an integrated view of the system fully in line with the constructivist paradigm of learning which advocates formative rather than summative assessment. Many of the initiatives outlined here are firsts in the region. SLOA is already being applied in many schools with links to the ARC. It is an approach to assessment that acknowledges the centrality of self-directed learning and which positions assessment as a tool to enable and enhance self-directed learning. It draws on several theories of learning and assessment including the constructivist notion that learning is best achieved when students take ownership of their educational process, setting their own goals and monitoring their own progress towards those goals. SLOA has been the research and service approach of the ARC since 2005. In the intervening years, the centre has developed a number of tools to facilitate SLOA learning and assessment including vertical ability scales, teacher friendly computer software and packages for self-directed learning. Critiquing Praxis ,2008-01-01 Critiquing Praxis describes the contemporary state of the teaching profession based on different aspects of Dutch educational praxis and the descriptions are followed by reflections from Australia and Scandinavian perspectives Its critique of the current state of the profession especially in the face of the centralisation of education policy and the decentralisation of responsibility to schools has widespread application elsewhere in the world The volume does not aim to judge those who made choices about schools and teacher education in the past rather it aims to offer an evaluation of how the perspectives that shaped past choices were themselves shaped by ways of understanding the world and by past historical conditions In our turn we who are making such choices and responding to such challenges now will ourselves be judged by history That being so we should prepare ourselves by learning from history Critiquing Praxis offers us a unique opportunity to do that with a praxis model for critique that is mainly based on European perspectives in pedagogy and sociology
