Emerald Green An Ecocritical Study of Irish Literature analyzes a wide range of Irish literature whose themes tie into a reverence for the natural world of Ireland. From an ecocritical perspective, these works tied into an understanding of the landscape and particular aspects of nature attain a fresh new meaning and foster a more relevant reflection of Ireland's beautiful literary landscape. The analysis begins with the first Irish writers, the hermit poets, and examines the ways in which the Irish hermit and saint were connected spiritually through both pagan and early Christian values to the natural world. The book then examines Irish literature from the perspective of the deforested landscape and the landscapes of farmland divided, property, famine, ruins, and a threatening natural world. Following the Famine, the book moves on to explore the establishment of the pastoral dream in this loss of landscape and a reconnection to nature through the writers of the Irish Literary Renaissance. From there, the analysis shifts to the nature writing of Ireland's islands, including nature and community on Achill Island, storytelling on the Aran Islands, exile in nature on Skellig Michael, and the mythmaking of the Great Blasket Island. Moving north and into the twentieth century, Emerald Green focuses on four nature poets from Northern Ireland: Patrick Kavanagh, Louis MacNeice, Seamus Heaney, and Michael Longley. All four are redeemed by nature through their returns to the rural landscape of Ireland's west coast. The book concludes with an examination of modern Irish environmental writers and naturalist poets, as well as journalists weighing in on current environmental concerns in Ireland. Emerald Green concludes with an assessment of the future of nature in Ireland and how the significant reduction of this country's natural landscape will alter its literary landscape as well. The Lonesome Trail and Other Stories Bertha Muzzy

Sinclair, 2021-08-30 In The Lonesome Trail and Other Stories, Bertha Muzzy Sinclair intricately weaves a tapestry of early 20th-century American life through the lens of the rugged West. The collection showcases her deft narrative style, merging vivid imagery with poignant character studies that reflect the struggles and aspirations of both settlers and Native Americans. The stories suffused with themes of isolation and resilience reveal the harsh realities of frontier life, as well as the emotional landscapes that define human experience. Sinclair's prose is both evocative and meticulous, embodying the regionalist literary context of her time while addressing universal themes of longing and belonging. Sinclair, a prominent figure in early American literature, drew inspiration from her own experiences as a teacher and her deep-rooted ties to the West. Born in 1871, she witnessed firsthand the challenges faced by women in a rapidly changing society allowing her to develop a unique voice that empathizes with marginalized perspectives Her background combined with a keen awareness of the social and cultural dynamics of her era imbued her writing with authenticity and depth This compelling collection is a must read for those interested in American regional literature as well as followers of feminist themes in literature Sinclair s ability to articulate the lonesome journey of her characters will resonate with any reader seeking a profound exploration of human emotion set against the backdrop of the American frontier
